ENCOUNTER AT POCHEP

Russia, August 25, 1941.
Informed that Guderian's main blow would fall upon his northern front; the Commander of the Briansk Front was caught by surprise as Panzer Group 2 swept southward.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the German player must exit 24 Victory Points (A26.2 - .3) off the east edge and/or north edge east of Y1 (incl.).

SPECIAL RULES

1. The Russian player may set up two squads and the leaders/SW stacked with them using HIP.

2. If set up in a woods hex, the location of the Trench counter need not be revealed until its hex is entered/searched by a German unit, or until its positive DRM is used to influence the outcome of a combat result.

AFTERMATH: Surprise was on the side of Panzer Group 2 as it pushed its way southward to Novgorod-Severski where it established a bridgehead across the Desna River and threatened the entire eastern flank of the 21st Army.

Designed, developed and playtested by the Southern California ASL Club.

SSR 1 GRENADE BUNDLES
A GB is a SW which explodes in the target hex with 8FP factors on the IFT. It is not subject to FP modification for PBF/TPBF or for any form of Area fire other than Concealment. It does not cause rubble (B24.11) but may create a Flame (B25.13). Leadership modifiers do not apply. A GB is "thrown" into an ADJACENT target hex during the PFP, DFPh (during First Fire, a defending unit already marked by a First Fire counter may not throw a GB nor can it do so during subsequent First Fire or FPF), or in the AFPh without penalty for moving.

A Grenade Bundle:
- may only be thrown by an unpinned, Good Order GERMAN MMC,
- attack may not combine FP with any other unit,
- attack is subject to Defender's TEM DRM's,
- is not represented by any counters but may only be used during the game as many times as indicated on the OB (at the determination of the German player).

Use of a GB is considered as use of a SW.

By Tim Taylor

Charlottenburg, April 26, 1945.
Berlin was being crushed in a Soviet vise.
The situation looked hopeless but Hitler believed that Wenck's 12th Army could disengage from the Americans on the Elbe and race over the Havel River to save the stricken city. To facilitate this operation the Fuhrer ordered a thousand Hitler Youth and the 18th Panzergrenadier Division to hold open the bridges and an east-west corridor into the capital.
Suddenly, Soviet spearheads drove through Grünwald, the City Park, striving to close the gap and completely surround Berlin.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the Soviet player must exit 40 points (A26.3) off the north edge by game's end.

SPECIAL RULES
1. Environmental conditions are Moist (B25.5) with no wind.
2. Three German squads may set up as half squads.
3. German AFVs may set up Hidden (A12.3).
4. Allocate PF shots in the following manner: 3 to each elite squad, 2 per line squad, and 1 per conscript (C13.31).

AFTERMATH
Even though tremendously outnumbered, the defenders were able to halt the advance of the 3rd Guards Tank Army for another day. The corridor shrank but the way was still open for Wenck to save Berlin.
The 12th Army was engaged on so many different fronts that while units did succeed in reaching as far as Potsdam it could move no closer to Berlin.
Romny, September 18, 1941. As Guderian pushed his Panzers southward, one weak gap on his left flank was struck by a coordinated cavalry/tank assault.

TACTICAL OBJECTIVE: The Russian player must control (A26, 12) 7 of the multi-hex stone buildings between hexrows 2 thru 8 (incl) on board 21 to win.

VICTORY AT PRATULIN
South of Pratulin, Poland, 22 June 1941.
For many German units, Operation Barbarossa began with the crossing of the Bug River. For the 17th and 18th Panzer Division this crossing was accomplished by specially modified tanks that could travel underwater to depths of 10 to 15 meters. Originally designed for Operation Seelow (the invasion of England) they were now deployed in Army Group Center’s opening move across the Bug River.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the German player must exit 20 points (A26.5) off the east edge.

AFTERMATH: The initial German thrust outside of Pratulin was quite successful. The Russian frontier guards were completely surprised. Russian armored cars, however, had shown up and were harassing the German infantry’s bridgehead until the amphibious tanks crossed the Bug River and attacked. Several armored cars went up in smoke while others fled. The Germans had successfully expanded their bridgehead by the end of the first day.

Crossroad - Scenario Special Rules:

1. ECs are moist, with no wind.
2. The German player suffers from an Ammunition Shortage (A19.131).
3. The German convoy may appear on turn one at Y1, but with the option of delay indefinitely. Vehicles must stay on the road. Base MP cost for a convoy vehicle is 2 MP per road hex, but use actual MP cost if over 2 MP per hex is expended. Convoy will use rule DI4, Radiocess AFV Movement, to determine movement procedure. However, convoy may not use non-platoon movement. If the 6+1 leader is a passenger in the staff car, the staff car may use non-convoy movement but will be credited toward vehicle exit victory conditions.
4. At the start of his Player Turn Rally Phase the American player may make a DR for reinforcements. After subtracting two from the DR, if the DR is ≤ the current player turn, the American player receives 4-6-6 squads equal to the number on the white die. Any leader received is dependent on the arrival of at least one 6-6-6 squad and is determined by the combined reinforcement DR as follows: 9+DR equals 9-1, an 8 = 8-1, a 7 or 6 = an 8-0, a 5 = 7-0, a 4 = 6+1, and <4 = none. The American may receive random armor support upon a successful reinforcement DR. If the colored dr = 5 then the American will receive one M4/76(a) tank in addition to the infantry reinforcements. On a colored dr of 6 the American player receives two M4/76(a) tanks. These reinforcements appear on the north or south edge of the mapboard west of hexrow N0-N10 inclusive.
5. All the roads are dirt surfaced. All buildings are wooden except for E5. The hexside markings are stone walls. Hill 242 is a second level hill with a cliff hexside in V3 and double crests in V3 and V4. Woods paths occur in V1 and H9. Due to wartime conditions the wheatfields in C2, C7, W8 and DD2 are not plowed.
(Note: The American player may receive more than one set of reinforcements)

AFTERMATH: On signal the mortars opened fire, raining a barrage of shells and smoke upon the surprised Americans. Major Henrichsen went berserk and the German infantry charged across the open ground toward the crossroad, heedless of casualties. The Americans quickly rallied and the tanks lumbered forward. Asch’s AT troop, at the edge of the woods, opened fire. The first tank went up in flame with the twelfth shell and burned out. The second tank turned, badly hit, after the eighteenth and fled the crossroad. The Americans were overrun and the Germans held the crossroad. Colonel Hauk raced the convoy through the crossroad before the Americans counterattacked. The Americans retook the crossroad and drove in circles around the woods. The Major surrendered his battalion to the Americans soon afterwards. Lt. Asch disbanded his troop, and under cover of darkness they made their way in small groups toward their native town.
TOWARD TULA

The Russians were in a total state of upheaval as the Panzers poured across the border. Ill-trained, ill-equipped troops reinforced by available tanks attempted to stem the onslaught. For General Guderian's tankers, this was the first tank battle of the campaign.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the German player must accumulate 25 more points (This 25) than he loses through the elimination of Russian units and the exit of his own AFVs (only) off the east edge. Any casualty points sustained by the German forces are subtracted from his total victory points.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the German player must clear (B24.7) or destroy (B19.5; see also SSR 4) the roadblock and exit 22 victory points off the east edge.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. Environmental Conditions are moderate with no wind. Elevated and sunken roads are treated as ground level. A road exists between 14Y2 and 14X5 via hexes X2, X3, and X4. Hedge X3-X4 does not exist. The stream is deep with a ford at hex V5.
2. The roadblock may be set up anywhere on the board within the limits of B29.1.
3. The T26 tank crews are inexperienced (D 3.46).
4. The roadblock may be destroyed by using a set demolition charge (A23.7).

RESUPPLY AT SAMRÉE
by David Deresinski

Samrée, Belgium, December 20, 1944:
On the third day of the Vos am Rhein offensive, the LVII Panzerkorps abruptly changed its course resulting in a disruption of the supply lines. On the next day elements of the Korps passed Houffalize and moved northwest along the north bank of the Ourthe River. In their path was Samrée, the main supply depot of the 7th Armored Division.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German wins if he is able to trace a continuous road from the east edge of the playing area to the west edge of board 10 which is neither occupied nor adjacent to any unbroken U.S. MMCs (not AFVs) and exit 10 victory points off of 10GG5.

SPECIAL RULES:
5. The bazookas may be hidden (by recording the carrying MMC) and are exposed when the carrying unit is eliminated or the Bazooka is fired. The U.S. player may use HIP (A12.3) for two squads plus whatever leaders/SW are stacked with them. No bore-sighting is allowed.

6. The U.S. player makes a dr during each of his rally phases in an attempt to bring reinforcements on board. The dr must be <= the circled # on the turn record chart for that game turn. Entry location is determined by a dr. 1–2 Choose (if a non–Stunned/Shocked friendly AFV is on board. If not, reroll), 3: 10Y10, 4: 10GG5, 5: 10Q10, 6: 17GG5.

AFTERMATH: The 60th Panzer Grenadier Regiment entered Samrée and began to sweep aside the limited defenses. Soon, however, a detachment of Task Force Tucker from Dochamps, rushing to help defend the village, entered it from the north. Nineteen year old Gefreiter Seileman of the 560th Volks Grenadier Division destroyed five Shermans within 18 minutes. The captured supplies, whose existence was a surprise to the Germans, proved to be a godsend. Without them they would have been stalled. Instead the Germans were able to move on. •A

A +1 modifier may be claimed for brush, grain, orchard, or marsh, when fired into by opposing units, but not in addition to any other DRM.

[8] German player may bore sight (C6.4).

[9] German player receives one module of 80mm Mortars OBA support.

[10] Before the German player places his "?" counters, the Soviet player may select one board (i.e. 13, 12, or 10) for a BOMBARDMENT (C1.8). The German then places his turn 1 markers on the board and the Soviet may resolve his BOMBARDMENT before regular play commences. The German player must reveal any units affected as per C1.82, 1.821, & 1.822. Any lost mine factors are duly recorded by the German player.

[11] German ATGs are EMPLACED (C11.2) and may be set up hidden along with any crews.

[12] All buildings on board 10 are of wooden construction. The Marketplace (B23.73) on board 12 is actually a one story wood building. Building 12U5 is a three story building in hex 12U5 only; the other hexes of building 12U5 are two stories. The following buildings on board 12 are stone: AA7, T7, U6, U5, V4, V5, V2, S5, & R2.

[14] Before game starts (including set-up), roll one die; a 1-3 denotes a deep stream (B20.43), 4-6 denotes a shallow stream (B20.42).

[15] Hexes 13GG4, FF4, A4, B3, C4, C3, are all marsh (B16), and when brush or woods is present it is a wooded marsh or brush marsh hex. There are no clear areas through the marsh areas; rather, they are continuous with each other and the pond and/or stream.

[16] There is no elevated road anywhere on board 13.

[17] German SPW 251/1s may set up Hidden in any woods hex.

[18] Any German infantry units (except ATG crews) which begin set up in woods, brush, grain, or orchard may have foxholes (B27.1) with them at start.

[19] Germans have ATM (C13.7) capability and must use rule C13.311 for PF usage. Each 6-5-8 SS squad (or one of its two HS equivalents), MUST be equipped with at least one PF.

AFTERMATH: The front stabilized when the Russians could not punch through the German lines to envelop and thereby destroy the SS divisions. After persistent and fruitless bludgeoning of the well entrenched and camouflaged SS Panzer Korps, the Fifth Guards Tank Army gave up its attack and another calm settled over the shaky front held by the Germans, northwest of Warsaw. The Totenkopf Division's exceptional combat performance did not escape their Fuhrer's attention. Hitler claimed that if he had a few more extra battalions to send SSTK, the situation might improve, because, "whenever one sent them reinforcements (they) always counter-attacked successfully".

RUSSIAN PARTISANS
by M. Balsai

Partisan Leader simulates an important but relatively unfamiliar aspect of the Russian-German war of 1941-45. It is focused in the Bryansk region because this area was very much a hotbed for Partisan activity, due, in large part, to the swampy, heavily forested Pripyet Marsh which provided excellent terrain for guerrilla operations, and its proximity to Moscow.

The time period (Summer, 1942) encompasses a time of growth for the resistance movement in this area. Even if not rigidly defined, the organization and composition of Partisan bands showed a certain pattern. They were jointly commanded by an Army Commander (usually) and a Commissar who were often specially trained for guerrilla warfare. "Higher up" there was an attached HQ company (with NKVD section). The "working" small unit was called (continued on page 7)

PARTISAN LEADER
Level: ASL (BEYOND VALOR)

Partisan Leader is a game of Partisan warfare on the eastern front. It is presumed to take place in the Bryansk region of the Soviet Union during the Summer of 1942, and involves the movement of a German convoy across seven scenarios until it reaches its final destination. The game is lengthy and will require several periods of play to complete.

The German player is in command of a convoy of supplies which is escorted by an ad hoc security company with light AFVs for support. Crouching in the shadows are the Partisans waiting for the Germans who must try to get through.

The Partisan player generates a new force for each scenario and sets up hidden.

Sequence of play:
Begin with Scenario #1.
Set up sequence (page 8).
Partisan generates his guerrilla band.
Partisans set up.
Germans enter.
Play until turn 8/10.
Determine and record score.
Begin next scenario, etc.

At the conclusion of the 7th scenario determine your ranking on the Victory Point Schedule (which is based on the number of convoy point values which cross the finish line-taking into account any penalties).

GAME SPECIAL RULES

Applicable to Both Players:

[1.] Prior to set up in each scenario, each player rolls one die. If the Partisan player’s number is higher then the scenario is a night action (determine NVR as per E1.11). If the German player’s die roll is higher then it is a day action. If both players roll the same number, the action occurs at twilight and the Partisan player rolls one more die, a dr of 1–3 is AM, 4–6 is PM. In twilight scenarios the first number’s NVR dr sets the base visibility limit, and for subsequent die rolls (E1.12 is modified for twilight as follows: For AM white dr ≥ 4 raises NVR to the maximum of 6, for PM ≤ 3 lowers NVR to the minimum of 0. Other results have no effect).

[2.] All Night rules (E1) are in effect during night scenarios.

[3.] Environmental Conditions are moderate. Wind is generated by the use of E5. Roll on Table E5 for each scenario. (Time is June–July–August). Roll normally for wind change.

[4.] If the German player fails to exit his convoy by turn 8/10 (ex. scenario 7) assume they eventually exit. Progress to the next scenario. However, the Russian player receives 5 bonus victory points (which are not to be considered as convoy casualties).

[5.] If the German player loses ≥50% of his “convoy” (as per convoy points) during any scenario then the same ends in an automatic Partisan decisive victory.

[6.] All 3-board scenarios are 10 turns. All 2-board scenarios are 8 turns.

GERMAN SSRS

[1.] Convoy rules (E11) apply to trucks (except E11.3 which does not apply). Other vehicles may start any scenario in convoy, but are not obligated to remain with it. All vehicles in convoy are subject to convoy rules (EX E11.3). See page 11 for convoy composition and notes.

[2.] During Night or Twilight scenarios, any German unit (including CE AFV crews) may use starshells.

[3.] 4–6-7 squads (and 2-4-7 HSS from same) are Sappers as per B28.8.

[4.] German 4–6–7s (not HSSs) may generate grenade bundles (12FP) if in good order and stacked with a leader during any PF, DF, or AF Phase.

Grenade bundles (GB) are always thrown (A23.6) but have no adverse effects on German infantry in an adjacent hex (including the attacking unit). German player keeps record of all units which have used their GB capability. Each squad may generate one GB per scenario and they are treated as DCS in all respects (except A23.2 does not apply).

Note: A Battle Hardened squad which used a GB in a previous “incarnation” (i.e. as a 4–6–7 or better) cannot use a GB in their new Battle Hardened form, but any Battle Hardened 4–4–7 may now do so one time as above.

[5.] All German units may use all SWs normally as per squad type.

[6.] Halftracks and armored cars may be used to clear roadblocks using the same procedure as per B24.76 and uses Bulldozer DRM. All participating AFV’s roll for Bog D8.2.

[7.] (This rule applies to Heroic Leaders and Battle Hardened squads PARTISAN SSRS

[1.] All Russian units are defined, in this campaign, to be PARTISAN FORCES or PARTISAN UNITS but only the 3-3-7 squads (and 1-2-7 HSs) are PARTISAN SQUADS/HSs. Only Partisan Squads/HSs, all leaders, Partisan heroes, and commissars are subject to A24.25 and have the following SSR abilities: Stealth (A11.17), and move through woods, brush, and grain with 1MP/hex. 4-4-7s, 4-2-6s (and battle hardened equivalents), and heroes (ex: commissars) do not have these abilities unless stacked with units that do possess them.

[2.] All 4-2-6 Russian squads/HSs are inexperienced (A19.3). All Partisan Squads/HSs, are subject to rule A19.33 and A19.34.

[3.] Battlefield Integrity rules (A16) apply in amended form to Partisan forces only:

a. The instant the Partisan losses exceed 50% (this is not surrender for VP purposes) they stop fighting. The scenario ends and the Germans are considered to have traversed the map (Partisan forces retreat); go to the next scenario. See the Point Values For Partisan Battlefield Integrity table on page 8.

Note: When "a" occurs, the German player does not receive VPs for the Partisan forces which "stop" fighting. These are considered to have "melted away" into the countryside.

b. Point values are located within the charts and tables on page 8.

c. The Partisan player may lose Victory Points if his losses are too great. When Partisan losses exceed 30%, the German player receives 1 VP for each additional 2% of the Partisan force eliminated, exited, or captured. The Partisan player must keep track of these losses and reveal them to the German player following the scenario's end.

[4.] Partisan forces may exit the map at the owning player's option. Once exited they may not reenter, and are counted as losses for Battlefield Integrity calculation. Partisans may exit any map edge on their Movement or Advance Phases, and on any Rout Phase.

[5.] During Night/Twilight scenarios, all Partisan units are Fanatical on the first turn that they are involved in combat (including CC). The Partisan player keeps a record of which units have received this bonus vs those that did not until all have done so.

All other rules pertaining to Partisans are in effect (incl H1.27).

[6.] Partisans may Bore Sight as per C6.4.

[7.] Each Partisan and Russian leader may use a starshell once per scenario.

[8.] All Partisan units generate Heroes normally (Note: Hero type forms from squad type, normally).

[9.] All Partisan units are subject to A25.2 (cannot deploy but can combine H3a). The Partisan force has an announced ELR of 2.

[10.] All Partisan squads and HSS operating SWs (except DCS) may not split SW and infantry FP. Partisans are also subject to A19.34 (PAATC). Partisan squads may not self rally.

Using the Generation Tables:

The Partisan player generates his forces at random prior to the start of each scenario. In addition, there are several redeployment options which may be available to the Partisan.

The first four die rolls (Table 1) define the troop portion of the band by quantity (total number), quality (percentage of non-3-3-7 squads), and the number of leaders present. Troop percentages are cumulative; therefore, a given band may be up to 50% non-3-3-7 squads.

Table 2 is used once for each leader to determine leadership quality, roll once for each leader. Every other die roll yields a Partisan leader (instead of a Russian Army leader).

Table 3 determines the category of equipment available (light, medium, heavy or special). Partisans must always make a die roll for all 3 categories of Category #4. (Note: Category #4 must always be rolled).

Categories #4 - #7 determine SW availability based on the type of SWs received in Table 3. (See Partisan Pre-Set Up Options.) When making these DRs, the columns chosen should be recorded with DRs. If a "--" result is obtained the die roll for that column may not be applied to another column.

Category #8 die rolls determine the types and quantities of prepared positions available. In scenarios 1 through 4, 6 and 7, the Partisan player may choose to roll on any two columns. In scenario 5 the Partisan player may roll on any three columns.

All Partisan units have MOL (A22.6) with a special dr<6 which is rolled after all other Generation DRs.

Table Notes:
1. When "rolling" for leader quality, every other DR (2nd, 4th, etc.) results in a Partisan leader; otherwise, the result is a Russian (Army) leader.
2. Commissars (A05.52) and Russian (Army) leaders can affect both Partisan and Russian (Army) squads.
3. You may substitute a 1-0 Commissar for an 8-0 Russian (Army) leader or a 10-0 Commissar for an 8-1 Russian (Army) leader. You cannot have two Commissars in one band/force.

TABLE #4 SUPPORT WEAPONS

"-" = None.

OTRYAD (detachment) and consisted, more or less, of three 100 man rifle companies (2-3 platoons) and there usually was an additional 400 man support company formed around the experienced, seasoned veterans of the band. Bands were made up of a number of "classes" of people, ranging from Red Army stragglers and escaped POWs, to CPSU officials and NKVD men, to women and former HIWs. The vast majority were conscripted peasants who were usually more fatalistic in outlook than politically motivated. Bands were held together by Draconian discipline, with summary executions being a fairly common punishment.

Units were equipped moderately well, and often by air. They usually had the latest in Soviet military small arms and were particularly fond of automatic weapons. By December 1942, it was estimated that as many as 130,000 well-armed Partisans could be found behind German lines.

October 1987

Partisan Leader

On All Fronts
Example - Generating a Partisan Band.

The Partisan player makes four die rolls on Table #1: (7, 6, 10 & 4). These will produce the following:
- 7 = 10 squads (total)
- 6 = 15% (FRD) 4–4–7s = 4–4–7 (x1)
- 10 = 15% (FRU) 4–2–6s = 4–2–6 (x2)
- 4 = 5 leaders

On Table #2 he rolls the following:
- 6 = 9–1 (Russian Army)
- 2 = 7–0 (Partisan)
- 11 = 8–0 (Russian Army) or substitute a 9–0 Commissar.

For SW category availability (Table #3) he rolls a 9 for Category 4 (only).

On Category 4 he rolls the following:
- 5 = 8...1 LMG per 5 squads or fraction (= 2 LMGs)
- 10 = SAN 5

All Partisan units can have MOL (A22.6) with a special die roll on all other generationDRs.

Thus, the band is as follows:
- 4–4–7 (x1), 4–2–6 (x2), 3–3–7 (x7), 9–1 (Russian), 7–0 (Partisan), 8–0 (Russian), LMG (x2), and SAN 5.

(Note that the die rolls for Category 8 were omitted.)

PARTISAN PRE-SET UP OPTIONS.

After force generation and prior to set-up, the Partisan player may exercise one or more of the following:

a. If the Partisans receive a weapons category other than Category 4, die rolls for weapons availability may be made on lesser columns.

b. Any mines received may be claimed as any type desired. Mines are received in terms of anti-personnel factors.

c. If the Partisans receive DCs they must be assigned to any leader or squad (which may not move prior to setting off the DC). DCs must be placed as per A23.7 and may be hidden in any non-marsh/water hex.

d. If received, the 37 Infantry Gun has a 2–2–8 crew (self rally applies). A1.123 applies to crews and the crew is not affected by A25.24.

SET-UP SEQUENCE

1. Consult the map diagrams to determine which boards will be used, their configuration, and any modifications included.

2. The Partisan player generates his band of Partisans.

3. Both players determine the time of day of the scenario.

4. The Partisan player sets-up.

5. The German player moves first in all scenarios, and has complete control over entry of his units.

(Note: German may not unload infantry from trucks (only) until a Partisan fires or is spotted.)

MAP INSTRUCTIONS

The arrows indicate the directions of entry onto, and exit from, the map. The lines on each side of the arrows (when present) define the limits within which (inclusive) the Germans must enter and exit. If no boundary lines are present, the German may enter and exit anywhere along the map edge indicated. Partisans may not deploy within four hexes of any German entry area, or within three hexes of, or east of, the finish line (last scenario only).

For vehicles - canal must be crossed by bridges. Depth rolled as per B21.22 but canal has no current.

For all scenarios:
1. Shellholes do not exist.
2. Roll stream's depth as per B20.4.
4. All 5 board scenarios are 10 turns.
5. All 2 board scenarios are 8 turns.
6. All bridges printed on any map are one-lane stone and may not be destroyed by the Partisan player.
PARTISAN INTERROGATION BENEFIT TABLE.

This table is used instead of E2.2. All other rules in E2 apply normally. Note: Select any higher final DR. If equidistant occupied hexes, choice by interrogated player. Automatic right of inspection (A12.16) regardless of LOS is allowed of any non-concealed unit.

Die Roll (Use E2.2 DRM Cause Chart)
-1, -2 Collaborates, entices comrades to surrender. All Partisan units within 5 hexes lower morale by one for duration of PLAYER TURN. Morale may not be lowered by more than one. Units stacked with leaders are not affected by this result.
0 Collaborates, leads captors through one mined hex. Such movement is at double MF cost (no Assault Movement possible), and captors must accompany prisoners.
1 Collaborates; leads captors through woods at Partisan MF cost (during scenario of capture only) to nearest hidden or concealed Partisan unit out of German LOS. Upon arrival, hidden/concealed status is lost (hidden becomes concealed and concealed units are exposed).
2 Informs captors of presence of nearest mined hex.
3 Informs captors of nearest hidden heavy or special weapons and owning troops.
4 Informs captors of nearest hidden prepared position (one hex) and any troops therein.
5 Informs captors of nearest hidden MG and owning troops.
6 Informs captors of nearest hidden Partisan occupied hex.
7 No information. Rules E2.3 & E2.4 apply and Table 2.42 is used normally.

Note: A Partisan sniper will "prefer" any collaborators in a target hex above any enemy snipers or exposed AFV crews. All results (i.e. dr 1 or 2) against collaborators is a 1 step reduction (squad—HS, HS—E/hr). If eliminated while performing "0" or "-1" this is now lost at the point of elimination; sniper is performed before any hidden/concealed units exposed.

BIBLIOGRAPHY
THE CONVOY

CONVOY POINT VALUES

German infantry loaded (trucks may convey and load/unload infantry normally) in trucks may use cloaking.
Opel counters - use Opel counters A-F and Büssing-Nag counters A-F (for cloaking purposes Büssing-Nag counters equal G-L). All trucks are considered as Opels.

Squads/HSs
4-3-6 = 2pts each (HS = 1pt)
4-4-7 = 2pts each (HS = 1pt)
4-6-7 = 2pts each (HS = 1pt)
(Battle Hardened squads = 2pts HSs = 1pt)

Leaders
9-1 = 2pts, 8-1 = 2pts, 8-0 = 1pt and 7-0 = 1pt (Hero = 0)
Leaders created via A18.2 and/or A15.2 derive VP value via A26.21.

Vehicles
PSW 222 = 3pts ea (+2 if crew is KIA)
SPW 251 = 3pts ea (+2 if crew is KIA)
Kfz 4 = 2pts
Trucks = 4pts each
Motorcycle = 0 each A26.22 is in effect. Any AFV recalled does not return for next scenario.

VICTORY POINT SCHEDULE

95+ Decisive
94-90 Major
89-85 Moderate
84-80 Minor
79-75 Stalemate
74-70 Minor
69-65 Moderate
64-60 Major
59 or less Decisive

The number of convoy points across the finish line (7th scenario) determine the type of victory. Consult the Victory Point Schedule (above) for the final outcome.

Note: If the German player fails to exit all vehicles after 8/10 turns then he is penalized 3 victory points (subtract 5 convoy points from his final score). If, at any time, he loses ≥ 50 convoy victory points (not taking into account any penalties) then it is an automatic decisive victory for the Partisan player.

supply lines and gathering intelligenze. They preferred to carry out their activities at night with great speed and then rapidly disappear back to their forest hideouts, frustrating German pursuit.
While their effects on the conduct of most major German operations were minor, the misery they inflicted on the German soldier generated the adage “Russians ahead, Russians behind, and in between, shooting”.

Note: German infantry in trucks may not dismount until some part of the column is fired upon (including AFV lead elements), but motorcycle, Kfz 4, SPW, PSW units may fire, dismount, etc. at any time whether tired upon or not.

October 1987 Partisan Leader On All Fronts 11
Recon Leader: Part 1

by Terry Treadaway

Recon Leader is a multi-faceted scenario game system using ADVANCED SQUAD LEADER rules. There are five situations, the first of which starts with this issue (the other four will follow in sequence).

It should be stated at the outset that Recon Leader is not meant to be rigidly historical in content although it is loosely based on an actual clash of U.S. and German recon forces in December 1944 and the units are based on available TO&Es of that period.

Secondly, Recon Leader was designed to fill that void while gamers are awaiting the publication of new scenarios. Now during that time, instead of leafing through old scenarios, you can pull out Recon Leader and roll up a NEW scenario. Situation #1 has over 900 possible scenario combinations alone (and there are four others)!

Third, it was designed to be played as a series of games (like a tennis match) with the most number of wins determining the winner. This will give the system a chance to “even out”. I recommend ten games.

It is also meant to be challenging. In some instances your opponent will have a distinct advantage. When that happens you better dig deep into your bag of tactical tricks, and you better find his weak points and discover your strengths. A scenario is not worth playing unless it challenges your knowledge of tactics and rules. However, if things seem too grim both players can decide not to play a certain situation or you can “Bail Out” (Option B).

While the system should be played when completed I know that you’ll want to “dig in” right away so here is a situation from our “Playtesters’ File” that provided a lot of excitement.

Situation 1: The Village.
U.S. Force #5/#1 (moved first)
Ger. Force #4
Center board – 12
U.S. board – 19
Ger board – 7
U.S. Final Score – 10
Ger Final Score – 11

If you want to start “rolling up” scenarios using only Situation #1 go ahead, but remember this system is meant to be played when completed. What I would suggest is that you play a series of 10 games since the more games you play the better are your chances of “things evening out”. (At a minimum I’d recommend the best 4 out of 7.) Also, ignore any sizeable disparities in final scores. A players’ record sheet is included (p.11) to help you keep score over what I hope will be many weekends of good gaming.

RECON LEADER

Before starting play there are certain steps that must be followed to create the game’s tactical situation.

Part 1: Choosing Sides.
Part 2: Selecting Your Recon Force.
Part 3: Selecting The Scenario.

Part 1: Choosing Sides.

Both players roll one die. Even die roll is the U.S. player; odd die roll is the German. If both die rolls are the same roll again until there is one even and one odd die roll.

Part 2: Selecting Your Recon Force.

See the Recon Force Table on page 4. The number rolled corresponds to the force selected (dr 3 = Recon Force #3).

U.S. RECON FORCE

DR 1  ELA 4 / SAN 3  #1
Recon Force Provost

DR 2  ELA 4 / SAN 3  #2
Recon Force Morin

DR 3  ELA 4 / SAN 3  #3
Recon Force Balsai

DR 4  ELA 4 / SAN 3  #4
Recon Force Harrar

DR 5  ELA 4 / SAN 3  #5
Roll again and make the following substitutions: (6-6-6s = 6-6-7s), (8-1s = 9-2s), (8-0s = 8-1s), (3-3-6s = 3-4-7s) & (Jeeps = M2s).

DR 6  ELA 4 / SAN 3  #6
Your choice of #1, #2, or #3. Plus add one.

GERMAN RECON FORCE

DR 1  ELA 5 / SAN 4  #1
* Combine counters from both players' games.

DR 2  ELA 3 / SAN 4  #2

DR 3  ELA 3 / SAN 4  #3

DR 4  ELA 5 / SAN 4  #4

DR 5  ELA 3 / SAN 4  #5

DR 6  ELA 3 / SAN 4  #6
Roll again and make Recon Force SS with an ELR of 5.

PF Availability: C13.31 is not in effect. Allocate PFS as follows: Ger Force #1 has 1PF, #2/2PFs, #3/2PFs, #4/2PFs, and #5/1PF.

Germans have no ATMM (C13.7) capability.
Recon Ldr. (continued from p. 3)

An option for limited intelligence (keeping your Recon Force secret) will be included later.

Part 3: Selecting the Scenario.

Both players roll one die. High die roller rolls again for scenario selection. *

On a die roll (dr) of 1 go to –
- Section 1: The Village.
- dr of 2 go to – Section 2: The City.
- dr of 3 go to – Section 3: Road Junction.
- dr of 4 go to – Section 4: Meeting Engagement.
- dr of 5 go to – Section 5: Mountain Pass.
- dr of 6 – Your choice.

Options: Once you have selected your scenario you must then decide which options will be used. Options are to be used only upon agreement by both players.

* The other situations will appear, in sequence, in subsequent issues.

Section 1: The Village

Center Board is 10/12. Both players roll one die. If the combined number is even then use board 10; if odd then board 12.

Step 1. Low die roller (from above) now positions the center board with the board number on his left (facing south) or his right (facing north). U.S. player sits on the west edge of the mapboard and the German player on the east edge.

Step 2. Each player now rolls one die (simultaneously) to determine his set up board.

U.S. Player:
- dr 1 = bd 14 with overlay “F” placed normally.
- dr 2 = bd 18
- dr 3 = bd 5
- dr 4 = bd 19
- dr 5 = roll again
- dr 6 = your choice

German Player:
- dr 1 = bd 4
- dr 2 = bd 18
- dr 3 = bd 15
- dr 4 = bd 7 with a one-lane vehicular bridge from 7AA6 to AA8.
- dr 5 = roll again
- dr 6 = your choice

Players choose direction (north/south) of their set up boards. All boards abut lengthwise. You will always be facing your opponent across the width of three boards (see Illustration #1). The boards should be set up in this configuration. The only difference being whether the board numbers face north or south.
Step 3. Both players now set up their forces simultaneously not more than 6 whole hexes from their friendly board edge (West for U.S. - East for German). Vehicles may set up in motion. You can sit in front of the mapboard and write down your set up (after which both players place their counters on board at the same time) or you may take a duplicate board to another part of the room where you cannot see your opponent's set up (and vice versa) and place your units thereon, return and place that board (with your units) next to the center board facing in the correct direction.

Victory Conditions: Player with the highest final score wins. Ties are decided in favor of the player who moved second.

Turns: There are 7 turns. High die roller moves first with ½ MPs.
The Date: September 1944.
ECs are moderate with a slight breeze (roll for direction).

To determine your score subtract your casualty points from your victory points (A26.2). The remainder is your score. Add to it any bonus points to arrive at a final score. Any units exiting the mapboard are considered as casualties.

Bonus Points: For each building that you control (A26.12) on the CENTER BOARD at game's end you receive 1 point for each mapboard hex it occupies. For example, 12M5 is worth 1 point, 12R7=4 points, & 10W4 is worth 2 pts.

Example: At game's end you control buildings 10EE5, EE7, DD2, and DD7. Your bonus points would be, in order, 4, 1, 1, 1, for a total of 7 pts.

Note #1: On Board 10. All multi-hex buildings are Rowhouses (B23.71) except 10Z6 which is a factory. The following one-hex buildings are stone: 10Q7, R6, R7, X6, BB1, BB3, and BB7. The remaining one-hex buildings are wood. All multi-hex buildings are stone and level 1, except 10Z6. It is recommended that you use the new edition of board 10.

Note #2: Rowhouses are considered as a combined multi-hex building but you must control all segment hexes to gain the multi-hex value. (For example, you must control 10DD3, DD4, DD5, & EE5 to gain the multi-hex value of 4 pts. for building 10DD4.)

Note #3: On Board 12. 12P3 and 06 are Rowhouses.

Option A: Delayed Entry.
Part of your force may be withheld for later entry. Write down on a piece of paper the units withheld, the turn number and entry hex(es) on which they will enter.

Turn 1-2: enter on your friendly board edge (east/west).
Turn 3-4: enter on your friendly edge or the north/south edge.
Turn 5-6: any mapboard edge. The paper remains on the table and is revealed when the forces enter. All units must enter exactly as recorded.

Option B: Bail Out.
Starting with Game Turn 4 (and thereafter) a player may decide to withdraw his force (and in effect end the game). If he does so his opponent is credited with a "win".

TURN RECORD CHART
High dr moves first.

SL RALLY '87
ASL Tournament

July 20, 1980, near the airfield at Taegon, Korea. As a team from C Company, 3rd Engineer Combat Battalion took their positions at a vital road intersection leading to the Taegon Airfield, they were issued the 3.5 Rocket Launcher. Soon they would learn whether it was the answer to the heretofore unstoppable T34 or face the fate of those that had gone before.

Scenario Design by T. Treadaway

Elements of the 5th Infantry Regiment, of the North Korean 5th Division. [ELR 4]

{SAN 3}

Enter turn 1, north edge of mapboard on road hex A6

Enter turn 3, north edge of mapboard on road hex A6

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the KPA player must exit 4 fully functional AFVs off the south edge at G05.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are dry with no wind.
2. PSK represents the newly issued 3.5 Rocket Launcher. Use PSK rules and tables with this exception - B12, R dr 1-3.
3. KPA AFV crew morale is 7.
4. All 1 hex buildings are Korean huts with no 1st level (GL only) and are open one room structures with a +1 TEM. Backblast (C13 $) does not apply if a RL is fired by a HS (equivalent or less) which is the sole occupant. All other buildings are treated normally.
5. U.S. may deploy 1 MMC prior to set up.

AFTERMATH: The team found a tank at the road intersection and promptly set it ablaze with rockets. They then took up positions and waited for more.

December 1987

On All Fronts 9
VICTORY CONDITIONS: The U.S. player wins if there are no unbroken German units on or adjacent to the road from W9 to R6. The German player wins by avoiding the U.S. victory conditions.

TURN RECORD CHART

Elements of the 3rd Battalion, 1058th Grenadier Regiment, 91st Inf. Div. set up on or adjacent to the road from W9 to R6 and within the hedgerow area (R6 - X9 - X8 - V9 - R9).

Dog Company, 1st Battalion, 504th Regiment, 101st Airborne Division enter on turn one from X10 to AA10. [ELR 4].

SPECIAL RULES:
1. Environmental conditions are moderate with no wind.
2. Only hedges R through GG (inclusive) are in play.
3. Treat all walls as hedgerows and hedges as hedges.
4. The sniper may set up anywhere within the hedgerow area.
5. American infantry may delay entry until the advance phase.

AFTERMATH: The units soon became separated. While waiting for Sink's units at a crossroad the light tank was destroyed by a rocket. Sitting upright in its turret was a dead man; and the crossroads soon became known as "Dead Man's Corner".

Section 2: The City

Center Board 20/21. Both players roll one die. If the combined number is even then use board 20; if odd then board 21. After having selected your Recon Force proceed with the following steps.

Step 1. Low die roller now positions the center board with the board number on his left or right. U.S. player sits on the west edge of the mapboard and the German player on the east edge.

Step 2. Each player now rolls one die (simultaneously) to determine his set-up board.

U.S. Player:
- dr 1 = bd 23
- dr 2 = bd 22
- dr 3 = bd 17
- dr 4 = bd 14
- dr 5 = roll again
- dr 6 = your choice

German Player:
- dr 1 = bd 12
- dr 2 = bd 15
- dr 3 = bd 8 (2 lane vehicular bridge at BQ3-Q8)
- dr 4 = bd 15
- dr 5 = roll again
- dr 6 = your choice

Players choose direction (north/ south) of their set-up boards. All boards abut lengthwise. You will always be facing your opponent across the width of three boards. (See Illustration #1 in Issue #60, p5).

Step 3. Both players now set-up their forces simultaneously (See Option A, p 5) not more than 6 whole hexes from their friendly board edge (West for U.S. – East for German). Vehicles may set-up in motion. You can sit in front of the mapboard and write down your set-up (after which both players place their counters on board at the same time) or you may take a duplicate board to another part of the room where you cannot see your opponent’s set-up (and vice versa) and place your units thereon, return and place that board (with your units) next to the center board facing in the correct direction.

Victory Conditions: Player with highest final score wins.

Turns: There are 7 turns. High die roller moves first with %MPs.

The date is September 1944. EOs are moderate with a slight breeze (roll for direction).

To determine your score subtract your casualty points from your victory points (A26.2). The remainder is your score. Add to it any bonus points to arrive at a final score. Any units exited off the mapboard, voluntarily or not (e.g. recall), count as casualties.

Bonus Points (if board 20 is used): 5 points each for control of the following buildings (see Note #2, p.5): 20BBB, CC7 CG9. 5 points each for control of 20FF6, E9, or Z8. 2 points each for control of Z7, BB9, EE4, EE5, and EE10.

Extra bonus points of 10 points for control of 6 of the 11 buildings listed above, or 20 points for control of 8 of the 11 buildings listed above, or 40 points for control of all 11 buildings.

Bonus Points (if board 21 is used): 5 points for control of 21J4, G2, G4, G7, F9, J1 or J9. 2 points for control of 21G3, 13 or 18. 10 points extra if there are no enemy MMCs or armed vehicles (not abandoned or immobi- lized, functioning main armament with a crew in good order) between hexrows E-K (incl.).
MICHICON
ASL TOURNAMENT
JUNE 1987

A PARTISAN RAID
July 1942, Russia.

German set up: One HS must be placed on each bridge. The squads, SMCs and SWs must be placed in one building. Consider contiguous rowhouse hexes to be one building for this purpose.

Partisans may enter from any board edge or edges.

[ELR 5] {SAN 4}

VICTORY CONDITIONS:
The Partisans win instantly if they destroy any bridge, on either board. If the Partisans set and detonate a DC on a bridge but do not destroy it, then they may still win by scoring more casualty points than the Germans by game's end.

Designed by Rick Troha
Special Thanks to Mark Nixon.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are moderate with no wind at start.
2. No German may move or advance until the first legal IFT (may not fire at an empty hex) or CC attack of the game, except any unit that has a LOS to a Partisan unit.
3. The DCs cannot be set underneath the bridge, only on the bridge.
4. All buildings on board 12 are ground level only.
5. The German may deploy 10% at set up without counting the three HSs.
6. Apply SW rules (e.g. Transfer, recovery, random destruction) to the abstract detonator held by the unit that set the DC.

1986 ASL Tournament Scenario #1
Kromatork area, May 17, 1942.
On May 12th the Soviets made their second attempt to recapture Kharkov.
Missing their initial opportunity, they committed their second echelon troops.
Unfortunately for them, it was too late as the Germans counterattacked to the south.
Scenario Design By Bill Sisler.

Elements of the German XVII Army enter the south edge of the board on turn 1.
{ELR 4} {SAN 2}

Elements of the Soviet 9th Army set up north of all hexes numbered 5, exclusive.
{ELR 3} {SAN 3}

Reinforcement enters as per SSR 3.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player must exit 15 points (A26.5) off the north board edge by game's end. Any other result is a Russian victory. Also read SSR 3.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. Only hexrows R-FF (incl) are playable.
2. All grain hexes are treated as clear terrain.
3. On game turn 3, the German player may bring on the StuG IIIB on the south board edge for support. He must bring it on turn 3 or not at all. If he does bring it on, he must exit 19 points instead of 15.
4. Concealment of Russian units at the time of set up is not allowed.

AFTERMATH: The 9th Army was not prepared to throw back a German attack. The Germans threw the Soviets back with superior forces.
On May 25th, Army Group “Kleist” joined up with the 6th Army to cut the Soviets off from the east. The Kharkov offensive had failed.

The Ardennes, December 21, 1944.
Peiper's Kampfgruppe had penetrated deep behind the American lines far ahead of its supporting units and now found itself surrounded and out of fuel. Mohnke, the commander of the 1st SS Pz., ordered them to break through to Peiper's beleaguered column. The 12th Airborne Division was the focus of the attack.

Elements of the 2nd PzGr. Regt. 1 SS Pz. Div. enter turn 1 on any east edge hex(es) of board 5 from 5L10 to 5B10 (incl.).

Elements of the 2nd Battalion, 505th Parachute Regt., 82nd Airborne Division set up anywhere on board 2 and board 5 west of row 3 (incl).

Victory Conditions: To win, the German player must exit 14 victory points off the west edge of board 2 between hexes 2Z10 and 2P10 by game's end. At least half of those victory points must be infantry.

Special Rules:
1. ECs are moderate with no wind (B23.5).
2. All hexes of hill 538 will be treated as ground level woods.
3. The American radio represents one module of 105mm OBA.
4. The American may not attempt an Artillery Request until turn 5.

5. Units may not attempt an entrenchment DR due to frozen ground.

Aftermath: Infantry teams equipped with bazookas knocked out the assault guns as they advanced but sustained heavy losses. Finally artillery support was called in which disrupted and ended the German advance.

Germany, February 24, 1945. After XX Corps' 94th Infantry Division and elements of the 10th Armored Division had established bridgeheads on the east bank of the Saar River, plans were made to continue driving east and capture the town of Zerf. In a move to expand the bridgehead by encouraging a German withdrawal, the 5th Ranger Battalion was ordered to infiltrate the German front line and cut the main road leading to the German rear.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The U.S. player must control (A56.12) both buildings south of hexrow Q without losing more than two squads or their equivalent by the end of the game.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are moist with no wind at start.
2. Night Rules (81) are in effect. NVR is 4.
3. Rangers are Stealthy.
4. Only hexrows A-Q are in play.

AFTERMATH: As the Rangers approached the objective B Co. came under fire from a farmhouse. Not wishing to bypass a German stronghold they attacked. Just as the Germans were being overrun, a machine gun in a hidden pillbox opened up, pinning the Rangers. A flanking maneuver around the pillbox, combined with a rush of the farmhouse, gave the Rangers the upper hand. All the Germans either surrendered or were killed.

MEETING ENGAGEMENT
September, 1944.

A special tournament adaptation of "Recon Leader" Section 4: Meeting Engagement.

U.S. Recon Force enter at 17Y10 with ½ MPs.

German SS Recon Force enter at 16Y10 with ½ MPs.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the German player's final score must be three (3) points more than the U.S. player's. To determine your score: subtract your casualty points from your victory points (A26.2- 22). The remainder is your score. Add to it bonus points for the following to arrive at your final score.

BONUS POINTS are awarded as per A26.21 for each good order MMC in building 6N4 and for each "Manned AFV" (SSR 3) adjacent to it.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are moderate with a Mild Breeze blowing toward the northeast.
2. ESB is not allowed during Game Turn 1.
3. "Manned AFV" - not abandoned or immobilized - has functioning MA with a crew in good order.
4. While C15.31 (FF Availability) is not in effect the Germans do have some FFs. The German player secretly assigns a FF to a unit and records the unit's ID.

The Battle of Prokhorovka was in full swing as the 2nd SS Panzer Corps grappled with the 5th Guards Tank Army. A sizeable force of Soviet tanks managed to penetrate the flank of the 1st SS Panzer Division and ranged deep into the rear echelons until they ran into the German artillery positions. A fierce struggle then ensued.

VICTORY CONDITIONS:
To win, the Russian player must exit 3 AFVs off the south board edge.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are moderate with no wind (82/3).
2. The German artillery units must set up on any hill hexes under the following restrictions: each of the artillery units must set up in groups of three of the same type and must be adjacent to each other (this represents battery fire). The covered arc of all artillery units must face the NE henspine (i.e. a unit in 18x3 has a CA of W3/X4). The flank units set up normally.
3. The Germans may not set up concealed.
4. The Germans are considered elite and their depletion numbers are one higher. (CA 2)
5. All Russian AFVs are considered to be radio equipped.

AFTERMATH: The surprised German gunners used direct fire on the Russian tanks, extracting a deadly toll and halting the breakthrough. The Russians had stirred up a veritable "bees' nest" and paid dearly for it, leaving behind many burnt out wrecks as they withdrew.

Armor Leader - Kursk
The Battle of Prochorovka
by Michael Balsai

On July 12, 1943, an overcast day punctuated by occasional showers and periods of sunshine, Paul Hauser’s II SS Panzer Corps began their "Death Ride". This was the commencement of the now famous Prochorovka battle, known to be the single largest day-long tank battle of World War II. This battle is, perhaps, also the best known of the various engagements which collectively constituted "Operation Citadel" or the Kursk campaign. Details of this battle are difficult to flesh out, due to the difficulty of English translations of reliable Soviet sources and the obfuscation of German sources. While many sources were consulted, many important bits of information were obtained from Krogus (1984) and Madeja (1987).

Since many primary sources for this battle were written sometime after the battle, apocryphal details crept into many descriptions. One glaring example appears in many otherwise reputable sources. That is, the claim that the Soviets deployed SU-85s during the Kursk battles, including Prochorovka. Major authoritative sources on World War II Soviet

Armored Leader – Kursk (ASL)

Three Important Points:

First, choose which game you want to play (Basic, Intermediate or Advanced). Play all six actions of that game. Do not switch from one game to another.

Second, after choosing sides you remain the German or Russian Armor Leader THROUGHOUT the series of six actions.

Third, once you have selected an armor force in a particular game it MAY NOT BE USED AGAIN. Each of the six different game forces will be used only once.

Set Up Sequence:

Basic thru Advanced.

* Step 1: Choose sides. You remain the German or Russian Armor Leader for all six games.

* Step 2: Select your AFV Force

- Basic Game – page 3
- Intermediate – page 10
- Advanced – page 11

Advanced Game SSRs & Victory Conditions are on pages 6-9.

Each force may be used only once.

* Step 3: Select your mapboard sections. German rolls for his entry board (Table 1). Russian player rolls for his entry board. Only one half of a mapboard is used ("A" or "G").

* German player makes a dr on Table 2 to determine the mapboard configuration (Step 3c).

* Step 4: Players then set up.

* Step 5: Play commences.

Now you are about to take your part as the leader of an SS or Russian tank company somewhere in that cauldron of death and destruction. Can you survive and become "The Hero of Kursk"?

STEP 1: Choosing Sides. Each player rolls one die (until there is one even and one odd die roll). The player with the even dr commands the Russian Force. Odd dr commands the German Force. You remain the German (or Russian depending on the die roll) throughout the series of six games.

STEP 2: Creating your Armor Command. Each player makes a dr on his respective Table to determine the composition of his command for each game. Once a force has been used it may not be used in subsequent games (cross out its dr * to indicate its ineligibility).
STEP 3: Mapboards a.) The German player now makes a DR on Table 1 to determine his entry mapboard. Roll two dice.
b.) The Russian player now makes his DR on Table 1 to determine his entry mapboard. Roll two dice.

The colored die (C) represents the columns; the white die (W) the rows. Cross-index your DR to determine your entry board. "A" means hexrows A–Q (incl) of the mapboard. "G" indicates hexrows Q–GG (incl).

Only one half of a mapboard is used by each player. (Example: The German player’s DR is 4(C) and 2(W). This means hexrows A–Q (incl) of board 17) are in play.

c.) Both players enter from off board on turn 1. Both sides enter with 6 MPs per vehicle (if entering on hexrow A or GG) or 4 MPs per vehicle if entering on hexrows 1 or 10.

Side "A" of a mapboard is hexrow 10. Side "B" is hexrow A or GG (depending on which half is in play). Side "C" is hexrow 1.

Example: The German player rolled a 6 on Table 2 which means that the Russian mapboard edge A (hexrow 10) joins the German mapboard edge C (hexrow 1). See Example #1 on page 5.

4 On All Fronts ARMOR LEADER - Kursk September 1988
Victory Conditions: The player who exits the requisite Victory Points (Russian 20 / German 18 – A26.21) off his opponent’s board edge wins automatically and the game ends at that point. If either side fails to exit the required victory points THEN the side which has destroyed twice as many vehicles as it lost (A26.21) is the winner. If there is still no winner then it is considered a draw.

Special Rules:
1. ECs are Dry with no wind for the entire game.
2. Either side may delay entry of up to half his armored force for any number of turns. However, all such vehicles must still enter on the same board edge (North/South respectively) but do so with full MPs.
3. Game Turns 4 & 5. Starting with Game Turn 4 Special Radioless AFV rules are in effect for BOTH sides. After Prep Fire but BEFORE movement the phasing player must make a 6 on Table 3 to determine how many of his eligible vehicles may move for that turn. Vehicles with an armor leader may always move and are not subject to the Table 3 die roll.

(Note: The Radioless AFV Rule is really a misnomer. The rule is meant to reflect the loss of command control that actually occurred as the battle turned into a swirling mass of tanks involved in individual life and death struggles. )

September 1988  ARMOR LEADER – Kursk  On All Fronts  5
ADVANCED GAME
Proceed as usual following Steps 1–5 pages 2 thru 5 EXCEPT as amended below; also, you must select your armor forces from the Advanced Table on page 11.

VICTORY CONDITIONS:
Player with the most points is the winner. It is a Marginal Victory if your victory points are less than twice (2x) those of your opponent. It is a Tactical Victory if your victory points are twice (2x) those of your opponent, and it is a Decisive Victory if your victory points exceed your opponent’s by ≥ 3x.

SPECIAL RULES:
All Special Rules apply (page 5) except as amended below.

[AG-2] The 10–2 represents the Panzer Command Leader. He may choose to attach the other Tiger tank from Force #6 to his command (if it has not already been committed). If he does so that Tiger is no longer a part of Force #6 and when that Force is “rolled” it will enter minus that vehicle.

[AG-3] Both sides enter with 1/4 MPs. ESB is not permitted during turn 1. There is no road movement bonus.

RAMMING RULES:
NOTE D14: AFVs attempting to ram other vehicles, especially other AFVs, was an infrequent event but these incidents did occur. Such incidents were especially likely among concealing hedgerows, during street fighting or wherever a concealed AFV could suddenly surprise a foe before its opponent could bring his ordnance to bear accurately. During the battle of Prochorovka there were a fair number of such instances of ramming due to the close-in swirling nature of this combat. One particularly famous incident occurred between a T-34 from the VIII Tank Corps and a Tiger tank (probably from SS Liebstandarte). This T34 was attacking down the left bank of the Psel River when it encountered a small group of Tigers (which were stationary). Captain P A. Skripkin’s tanks closed on the Tigers rapidly, hoping to get in close before they were seen, thereby obviating the significant armor advantage of the Tiger. Skripkin shot one Tiger in the side but another blasted Skripkin’s tank with two side shots, wounding him in the process and killing the gunner. A. Niko- laiev, the driver of Skripkin’s tank, as well as the radio operator, dragged their wounded commander from their blazing tank to a nearby shell hole. Nikolaiev observed the Tiger bearing down on them. He ran back to his burning wreck, started it, and charged the Tiger. The startled Tiger halted, but it was too late. The T34 impacted with the German AFV at full speed causing both to explode with “ground shaking force”! A nasty business indeed.

D3.81 RAMMING: An AFV may attempt to ram an opposing non-motion status vehicle (only) if it is located within 2 hexes and no greater than 8 MPs from the target vehicle, and if the attacking vehicle has not PF or moved prior to attempting to initiate the ram attack. Additionally, an AFV may always attempt a ram attack from an adjacent or same hex as the target vehicle (providing it has not PF or moved prior to its ram attack). If a ram attacking vehicle is expendng more than 2 MPs to enter the target vehicles hex (EXC the 1 MP to start is not counted toward this 2 MP total) then this attacking vehicle must take an ESB check with modification to the roll for each MP over 2 used to enter the target vehicle’s hex (NOTE: modify roll by table D2.5) with any immobilization taking effect after a ram attack attempt is resolved. Additionally, an AFV may move no further after making a ram attack attempt and thereby occupies the same hex as its target vehicle.
Any MPs expended for movement outside VCA are counted against the first 2 MP expenditure of the attacking AFV. Any vehicle that attempts a ram attack may not claim motion status and need not expend one MP to Stop. Additionally, all surviving AFVs are Bogged (D8.2) and must “unbog” to move.

Once a Ram Attack is declared it must occur and the Ram Attacking AFV may not perform any activity other than the Ram Attack.

D3.811 VS UNARMORED VEHICLE:
When an AFV attempts to ram attack an unarmored vehicle (EXC This does NOT include AFVs with an unarmored front, side or rear facing) such as trucks, jeeps, motorcycles, etc., and it outweighs the defending vehicle by x twice as much, the defending vehicle is automatically eliminated with NO PRC survival. Place a wreck when applicable. This wreck cannot be scrounged (place scrounged marker). The attacking vehicle rolls for bog (Table D8.21) with a +3 DRM in addition to any other applicable bog DRMs (D8.2).

D3.82 ATTEMPTING RAM ATTACK:
Any AFV attempting to ram attack another AFV (EXC D3.811) must first pass a normal TC. If a ram attacking AFV is hit and “killed” by defending vehicular ordnance fire (i.e. from the target AFV) and the ram attacking AFV is adjacent or in the same hex as the target vehicle, the ram attacking vehicle may still successfully attempt the ram attack if the following conditions are met:

(a) Must be in same or adjacent hex to target vehicle.

(b) Must first pass crew survival roll (CSDR +4 if attacking vehicle is burning) - Note: This is the only instance a burning AFV makes a CS DR and this only allows the attacking AFV to successfully conduct the ram attack. This crew will not bail out and is eliminated after the attack irregardless of the final result.

(c) Crew must not “bail out” prior to the resolution of the ram attack. The crew of a “killed” AFV must pass a +2 TC to successfully carry out the ram attack after a successful CS attempt and will bail out instead of ramming if it fails.
The crew of the burning AFV must pass a +3 TC to conduct a successful Ram Attack. If it fails the attack does not occur and crew does NOT “bail out” (i.e. it is KIA).

Whenever an AFV rams an opposing AFV a Dr is made and the RAMMING
TABLE (D3.82) is consulted to derive a result to the ram attack. The Dr is modified by the difference between the attacking AFV’s facing armor (Hull AF) factor modifier and the target AFV’s facing armor (hull) factor for the hexside facing receiving the ram attack (attacker specifies which area of the defending AFV is hit when in the same hex, depending upon facing of both AFVs in the hex). Additionally, there is a -2 drm if the ram attack is conducted across a wall/hedge or in an orchard. There is a +2 drm if the attacker rams the defender from across higher terrain and a +1 drm if ramming AFV across lower terrain (or if attacking AFV was concealed/hidden as it executed its ram attack). All DRMs are cumulative. Ram attacks are prohibited in or across the following terrain:

- Woods (EXC if via bypass which has a -1 DRM), wood and/or stone buildings (EXC if via bypass, has a -1 drm), graveyard, rubble, & bocage (EXC AFVs fitted with Culin device or Dozer blade may ram attack through bocage if starting adjacent to the bocage hexside and have their attack modified by -1).

Example: A T34-47 rams a PzKpfw VIE on the side from across a slope (T=34 going from higher to lower level). T34's frontal armor factor is 11. Tiger's side armor factor is 8. Thus 11-8 = 3 +2 (from higher to lower terrain drm) = +5 as final drm. A dr of 1 is rolled to which is added the +5 giving a final result of 6 which from the table is both AFVs are eliminated. Both AFVs make a 2nd dr. The T34's is even and the Tiger's is even. Therefore both AFVs are burning.

* Roll 1 die for each AFV. If even, AFV burns; if odd, roll for CS, etc.

D3.83 EFFECTS ON SURVIVING AFVs:
Immediately after any successful ram attack, each surviving AFV must make a DR for additional damage. A white 6 immobilizes the AFV (4-6 if checking AFV is rammed on the side). A colored 6 disables the MA (4-6 if checking AFV is rammed or ramming across the CA of the MA).

D3.84 EFFECTS OF EXTREME PROXIMITY ON DEFENDING AFV TO HIT:
A defending AFV firing ordnance at an AFV attempting to ram attack incurs the following penalties.

- If the attacker is attempting to ram from the same or adjacent (providing attacker expends NO MP's changing CA) hex at target vehicle:
  - Case J (Table C6).
  - Case A (Table C5) without benefit of Case L (Table C6). If the ramming AFV is approaching from outside the defender's CA.
  - Case K will be applied if the attacking AFV was concealed/hidden; and Case R if a ram attack occurs WITHIN an orchard, grain, or brush hex.

3.85 TC REQUIRED TO DF AT AFV ATTEMPTING TO RAM FROM ADJACENT OR SAME HEX IF OUTSIDE DEFENDER'S CA: A defending AFV must pass a TC to fire at an AFV attempting to ram attack if the attacking AFV is approaching from outside the defending AFV's main armament CA. (It must pass a TC +1 if attacked in the same hex no matter what the defender's CA). Failure to pass this TC results in a ram attack proceeding before the defending AFV can DF. If the defending AFV survives the ram attack it may DF at the attacking AFV normally thereafter if it so chooses. If it remains unharmed (EX: D3.86) in any way.

D3.86 RAMMING DURING FIRST FIRE/DEFENSIVE FIRE: Any AFV which gains motion status via rule 2.401 (Motion status during opposing player turn) may attempt a ram attack against the enemy AFV which caused the "motion" status, providing: (a) the AFV which just gained motion status passes a TC +1, (b) providing the enemy AFV (i.e., the one to receive the ram attack) is adjacent or in the same hex as the AFV which intends to ram, (c) the AFV which is to be ram attacked must be "stopped" (i.e., non-motion status), and (d) all conditions for rules D2.401 and D3.81 are met normally. The ram attack attempt then occurs prior to any bounding fire or any other offensive action by the AFV receiving the ram attack, and all results are immediately applied before any attack can be made by the "target" of the ram attack.

Battle (continued from page 2) armor (e.g., Milosam, 1970; Zaloga & Granden, 1984) established that the SU-85 did not enter production until August 1943. This type of problem occurred myriad times, but what follows will hopefully be as reliable an account as can be had at this point. It should be noted that the "Panther" tank was apparently not among the SS OB by this time since all had been lost earlier or had broken down (the "teething" problems of the Panzerkampfwagen V tank during this period are well known). It also seems that the three SS divisions engaged at this battle had a mere 12 "Tiger" tanks between them (Das Reich had a measer two!). The SS fought this battle mostly with Panzer IIs (31), Panzer IVs (90), and "Stugs" (70) and, interestingly, the Das Reich Division fielded 12 T-34 tanks on this day against their Soviet foes. The Soviets were opposing the SS mostly with T-34a and a large number of T-70s (about 3/4 their force), as well as a very minor sprinkling of KV-1a, SU-76s and even 35 lend-leased "Churchills". No SU-152s were present at this battle. The 1st SS Division (Liebstandarte Adolf Hitler) occupied the center position, with the 2nd SS Division (Das Reich) to the right and the 3rd SS Division (Totenkopf) on the left. Opposing Hauser's Corps were elements of the Fifth Guards Tank Army and Fifth Guards Army. The Soviet XVIII Tank Corps, the XXIX Tanks Corps, and the II Guards Tatninsk Tank Corps, all parts of the Fifth Guards Tank Army bore most of the fighting that day. Continued in next month's issue.

October 1988  On All Fronts  7

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the U.S. player must control building 6N4 at game’s end.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are moderate with no wind at start. Kindling fires is NA.
2. One tank of the U.S. player’s choosing has a functioning gyrostabilizer. The inherent passenger of the the M3A1 Scout car is a 2-2-7 crew.
3. Germans may not boresight.
4. The Pak 35/36 represents an Italian 47mm ATG. Use Pak 35/36 values.

AFTERMATH: The inexperienced U.S. forces were unable to dislodge the German Paratroopers. However, when a U.S. Reconnaissance Company out-flanked the farm and advanced east toward Djerda, the Germans were forced to withdraw to Mateur during the night.

After the breakthrough near Ljyinskoye the 19th Panzer Division advanced quickly until its arrival at the Istya River where a bridge was found intact but furiously defended. Then the order is given, "all weapons, fire - and get across that bridge".

Elements of the 19th Panzer Division set up on any non-bridge hex west of the river. Tanks must set up on road hexes. [ELR 4] [SAN 2]

Reinforcements enter on turn 5 as per SSR 4.

Additional dummy concealment counters. Make a secret die roll. dr equals number of additional counters.

VICTORY CONDITIONS:
See SSR 3 on page 8.

SPECIAL RULES:
See page 8.

AFTERMATH: Once over the bridge, the first tank was destroyed and then the second. The third spotted the gun and destroyed it. By this time the 88 was set up and started firing. It wasn't too long afterwards that the advance overwhelmed the Russian defenders.

Play and rate this scenario using the "Score Card" on page 12.
Dear Sir:

I am interested in purchasing the PBM booklets. Could you please tell me how much they are.

M. Markley, PA

Life never ceases to amaze me. I give something away and suddenly people want to buy it!!!

The PBM booklets are not for sale, but don't worry, we will continue to offer them free when you resubscribe (or with special orders - see "Bulletin Board" in the last issue). We have enough in stock so that there should be enough to go around for quite awhile. *A

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are moderate with no wind at start.
2. River is deep with moderate current.
3. Before the game starts, the German player may change the orientation of board 7. In addition, before the Russian sets up, he can choose where to place a two-lane stone bridge on board 7. After this, but before the Russian set up, he must choose one of the following victory conditions:
   (A) Exit 15 victory points off the east edge.
   (B) Automatic Victory: Have more good order squads on board 19 than the Russian, and have earned 18 victory points. Game ends at this point irrespective of turn *.

(c) Clear board 19 so that there are no Russian MCCs, in good order, west of hexrow 3, inclusive. The German player loses automatically, if he loses all his AFVs (includes Recall).

Halftack does not apply.

4. Starting on turn 5, the Russian player may roll once per game turn during his RPh for reinforcements that arrive on any or that is at least four less than the current turn number. The reinforcements are a number of 4-5-8 squads equal to the turn number in which they arrive, plus a 7-0 leader.

5. Six Russian squads may set up in foxholes.

6. Road hexes exist between 19Q10 and 19Q6. 19Q9 is a forest road hex. *A

ANNOUNCEMENT
Want to Run a tournament at SL Rally '89?
You'd better write to us soon. Now is the time we make up the schedule for June's Rally. Once we release the announcement in the February issue things are pretty well locked in and there is very little chance that we will change our schedule to squeeze in your tournament.
Want to run one of our tournaments? Just let me know. There will be more events (including games other than ASL) in '89 and we could probably use your help.

VICTORY CONDITIONS:

To win, the German player must earn 28 vpts. The Russian player must earn 16 vpts. Each enemy tank eliminated is worth one victory point. Each enemy tank immobilized is worth ½ of a point. In order to win, each player must achieve their respective victory conditions while preventing their opponent from doing the same. Any other result is a draw.

SPECIAL RULES:

1. ECs are Moderate with no wind at start. Woods do not exist; treat as open ground. Orchard and brush exist normally.
2. At the conclusion of the game any Shocked AFV must resolve their Shocked status by continuing to roll a die as per the normal rules.

AFTERMATH:

A furious tank battle ensued during which the village changed hands repeatedly. When it became obvious that the Russians were concentrating numerically superior forces the Germans were forced to withdraw back to the Assay River. The Russians, however, had suffered such heavy losses that they did not pursue, but rather contented themselves with establishing defensive positions.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player wins by controlling all level 2 hill hexes at game’s end.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. Deep and Falling snow are in effect. The falling snow is high intensity (E3.71) at start. No wind at start.
2. Only hexrows 5-V (incl) are playable.
3. Night rules are in effect. It is overcast with no moon. The base NVR is 2 hexes.
4. The Russian is the Scenario Defender and the German is the Scenario Attacker. Both the Russians and the Germans are Lax.
5. The German player may make a Recon dr (E1.23).
6. Prior to scenario set up, the German player must record any two hexes as targets for his Pre-registered OBA. One hex each for two separate 100MM OBA modules. The German player must also record a single hex anywhere on Hill 621 as his Objective hex. At the start of any friendly FFP/H/DPh in which the German’s best Good Order leader occupies his Objective hex he may make a special Starshell Usage dr. All of the normal Starshell procedures apply. This special Starshell Usage attempt must be pre-designated as the OBA signal flare prior to making the dr. If the leader fails the dr he is free to try again in a succeeding FFP/H/DPh. If the dr is successful the German player may resolve both modules, utilizing the pre-registered hexes as their initial target hexes. This OBA is resolved immediately as an FFE:1 (i.e. there is no SR) and it cannot be corrected. The signal flare dr replaces all Radio Contact and Battery Access procedures. Initial Accuracy is resolved normally. Both FFEs remain on board until the CFP following the resolution of their FFE:2. Once successful, no other OBA can be activated.

At a time when ON ALL FRONTS is read in more countries by more readers than ever before it is more important than ever to make certain that there is no misconception of what we do or who we are. It is also important to understand that we are totally independent. We are not associated with (nor supported by) any game company. Nor do we follow in lockstep behind any game company.

The content of this "amateur" periodical is determined by you. If you are disappointed because you are not seeing what you want that's because others are not doing what you want. They're doing what they want to do (and don't ask me to do it either because I'm doing what I want to do, too).

If you are doing something new and interesting with the game you ought to be able to tell others about it and not have your ideas or material rejected simply because they do not adhere to a certain philosophy or are not professionally written. It's your game. You paid for it (paid a lot) and you are free to do with it whatever you like within the parameters of the law, reason and good taste and you ought to be able to communicate with others who are interested in what you are doing.

That's what we do here. We communicate and we do new and interesting things.

If you are a subscriber then you are a part of that. You are a part of an organization of players that put out the first SL newsletter, held the first nationwide tournaments, brought round robin style tournaments to the GI and ASL Origins tournaments, did new rules, counts, mappers and a lot more. Be proud of that. I am.

Tuesday, May 20, 1941.
Kavasalia Hill (Hill 107), a short distance from the airfield at Maleme, Crete.

TACTICAL OBJECTIVE: The German player receives 5 Victory Points for each level 2 hill hex he controls at the end of the game.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are moderate with no wind at start. Wind direction is south to north for glider landing purposes (e.g. B1-C2-D2).
2. Neither side can make smoke.

3. One British squad with SW weapon (not 76* Mortar) may set up HIP.
4. Overlay Placement:
   - "H" with K5 on 19C6 & F7 on 19H8.
   - "I" with T7 on 19L3 & X4 on 19Q5.
   - "B" with C1 on 19R7 & D0 on 19V8.

Before proceeding to the scenarios you and your opponent should decide now which version you want to play:
(1) The 3 Scenarios or
(2) The Free Form.
Both use the same: Victory Schedule, Tactical Objectives, set up and entry restrictions and Special Rules, etc.
The only difference is in one version (The 3 Scenarios) you are given the forces in each situation and in the other you can allocate them yourself, in whatever manner you choose.
One other thing. No matter which version you choose to play, you must decide beforehand which force you will command. You will remain the German or British player for the entire game of three scenarios.
To decide forces, each player rolls one die. The player with the even die roll is the British player; the one with the odd die roll is the German player (keeping rolling until there is one even and one odd die roll).

How To Play The 3 Scenarios:
After choosing sides proceed to the first scenario, play it, and then the German player records his result. Do the same for the second and third scenario. At the end, the German player totals his three scores and compares it with the Victory Schedule listed below to determine the final outcome.

How To Play The Free Form:
After choosing sides proceed to page 7. There you will see the forces listed for both sides. The British player is required to place two AA guns with their crews in Scenario #1, two AA guns (with crews) in Scenario #2, and the 76* mortar with its crew in Sunday, October 8, 1944, 50km SW of Debrecen, Hungary. The Russian’s “Operation Group Flieu”, a cavalry/mechanized force, began its thrust northward to capture the city of Miskolc and cut off the retreat of “Armeegruppe” (continued on page 9)

Elements of the Hungarian 4th Infantry Division set up on boards 11 & 13 at least 6 hexes from the south edge.

[ELR 1] [SAN 4]

Elements of the 63rd Marine Brigade set up on board 5, 6th Guards, Chonst, Corps.

[KEL 4] [SAN 2]

Enter the south edge of board 1 on turn 1.

Note: Ownership of ASL Module #4, PARTISAN!, is required.

VICTORY CONDITIONS:

To win, the Russian must exit 40 Victory Points (A26-3) off the northern edge of board 13 between hexes 11 thru Y1, inclusive, by game’s end. Failure to do so results in a win for the Hungarian player.

SPECIAL RULES:

1. ECs are wet with no wind.
2. The stream is deep (B20-4).

5. Hungarians are Axis Minors and must use red TO HIT numbers, must pass a SPAATC, and all breakdown numbers are lowered by one (A19-32).

4. Two Hungarian MMC end leaders/SWs stacked with them may use HIP. Hungarians in suitable terrain may set up in foxholes (not to exceed 12 one squad counters or equivalent).

5. All Russian units must enter mounted on either vehicles or horseback.

Wholer”. Only weak Hungarian infantry barred the way and they would be sorely tested to hold the Soviet advance long enough to allow the German Panzer Divisions to mount a counterattack.

AFTERMATH:
The Hungarian blocking forces were brushed aside by the Russian mobile force which raced northwards deep into the Germans rear. They soon found that they had overextended themselves as they were cutoff by counterattacking German Panzers and had to fight their way out of the encirclement. The Hungarian sacrifice had not been in vain.

N.O.W.S. CON 1986
Novorssisk area, Monday, February 8, 1943. After a three-day buildup of the beachhead, the Soviets made an attempt to expand it. One objective was Hill 307. From here they could dominate the Novorssik-Glebouka road.

Elements of the 73rd Inf. Div. set up on board 3, north of all hexes numbered 1, inclusive.
[ELR 4] {SAN 3}

Elements of the 83rd Marine Brigade set up on board 5.
[ELR 4] {SAN 2}

Enter north edge of board 2 on turn 1.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Russians must be the last to occupy, uncontested, all level 3 hexes on board 2 by the end of the game.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are moist with no wind.
2. The Russian tanks are not subject to the rules governing tanks without radios.

© Copyright 1989 M.C.C.

AFTERMATH: The Soviets pushed up Hill 307, straddling the road just in time to meet a German counter-attack led by the newly-arrived German 125th Division. Pushed off of Hill 307, the Soviets dug in and received reinforcements. By February 14th, the rain began to fall, slowing all offensive operations to a crawl.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Germans win if they are the sole occupants of building 10Z6 at the end of the game.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. Ground Snow (E3.72) is in effect.
2. The Germans have no PF capability.
3. Grain hexes are treated as woods.
4. The American units in building 10Z6 are fanatic.
5. The SS infantry are subject to ammunition shortage.

6. Only hexrows A-P (incl) on board 10 and GQ-R (incl) on board 11 are in play.

AFTERMATH: After a bloody fight the SS withdrew, leaving the grim paratroopers in control of the town. Further attempts would prove successful, but at a high cost.

HELL'S FURY AT MUENCHEBERG

Muencheberg, Germany, Thursday, April 19, 1945. Zhukov's 1st Belorussian Front had finally broken through the German defenses on the Seelow Heights and began to advance on Berlin, only to find the 5th Panzer Corps barring the way.

Scenario by Tom Morin.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Russian player wins if he controls all the multi-hex buildings on board 3 at game's end.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are normal with no wind.
2. All hexes of hill 547 and hill 534 will be treated as ground-level woods.
3. Russian 6-2-8s are Assault Engineers (XI.22) except units arriving with the 11th Guards Tank Corps.
4. The German must undergo a Bombardament (C1.8) prior to start of play on board 3, only.

AFTERMATH: The German's valiant effort was futile as the Russian attack finally enveloped and crushed the defenders.

APRIL 1989

On All Fronts 11
Victory Conditions: The American player must capture four buildings (A26.12) or inflict eleven casualty points (A26.21) on the SS player at the end of seven turns.

Special Rules:
1. ECs are Ground Snow (E3.72).
2. Neither player may set fires (B25.13).
3. All Brush hexes are woods.
4. The German player may set up one squad or two HSs using HIP (A12.3) along with any SW or leader to be placed with the squad or HS.
5. The German player has no PF capability (C13.3).
6. The German player must set up in building hexes, except for one squad.

Dear Terry,

... Many thanks for continuing to provide an excellent 'zine. The five years of subscription service I have received from you has been top-notch. Keep up the good work!

E. Jackson, KS

Thanks for your letter. Every now and then I like to print one of them so that you and the rest of our friends out there know that their kind words are received and appreciated.

Here are some of the reasons why a lot of our readers are so pleased:

- In continuous publication since 1982. We are now in our 7th year.
- Published monthly in a magazine format. Mailed on time.
- There have been at least 2 scenarios (sometimes more) in each issue since 1984.
- Published the ORIGINS SL, COI, GI & ASL scenarios from 1983 to 1986.

You still can’t get these scenarios anywhere else!

- During the past 6 years (1982 to 1988) ON ALL FRONTS has published:
  1. Book Reviews;
  2. New ASL Game Systems: PARTISAN LEADER, RECON LEADER, ARMOR LEADER–KURSK, 175 articles;
  3. PBM systems (includes ASL); 164 scenarios including those about the Pacific (Japanese), Korea, Vietnam, Japanese vs Russians, Italians, and U.S. vs USSR.

- 4 replays;
- NEW counters;
- NEW terrain overlays;
- NEW mapboards;

NEW ASL RULES – Sturmoviks (includes AT rockets) & AFV Ramming Rules;
- Scenario Design Contest ($50 in cash prizes);
- Best Article Award ($50 in cash prizes);
- Have held tournaments in many cities (Baltimore, Chicago, Dallas, Los Angeles, St. Louis, Tulsa and Trenton) across the United States, including 3 ORIGINS Tournaments;
- Awarded cash prizes at our own SL Rally for the past three years in a row;
- And finally, if you put all the twelve issues you received for your subscription for 1988 together you would have received a –

- 144 page SL thru ASL booklet that contained over 21 articles and 32 scenarios (plus one new ASL game system).

FOR ONLY $15.95!!!

PARATROOPERS (cont. from p. 10) the mortar company stationed there. Major Tomask, the Commander of the 509th, heard the fighting and against orders sent two of his companies to retake Sa'doz. AFTERMATH: The Germans, after facing stiff opposition from the mortar men, were in no mood to establish proper defensive positions. They spent most of their time looting the village and getting warm. When the paratroopers showed up with tanks there was a fierce but short-lived defense. *A

May 1989

On All Fronts 9
Two miles south of Ponteolvio, July 11, 1943. The Paratroop landings on Sicily were scattered some 26 miles from the target and confused. Nonetheless, the 82nd Airborne was a thorn in the Germans' side with their continuous ambushes on coastal defenses, rear area units and communications. On the morning of July 11th, Gavin found himself in a position to strike the rear of the German counterattack on the Gela beachhead.

Elements of the XV Panzer Grenadier Division enter turn 1 on hex Y10 (infantry must be mounted in halftracks). [ELR 4] {SAN 3}

Elements of the 505th Regimental Combat Team set up on any non-open hex using HIP. [ELR 5] {SAN 5}

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German must exit 25 points off the south edge or earn 16 casualty points by game's end.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. The U.S. player may set up using Hidden Initial Placement. The roadblock sets up hidden and is placed on board as soon as a German unit has a line of sight to it.

2. All German units must enter on turn 1. No German unit may fire, except to remove the roadblock, until the phase after the U.S. fires for the first time. The German also may not move off the road or disembark until the U.S. fires.

3. No kindling is allowed.

4. Vehicles may not overstack.

AFTERMATH: Colonel Gavin's paratroopers ambushed the German halftracks with great effect. After a short but brutal firefight, the German reinforcements withdrew and thus blunted the counterattack on the US 1st Infantry at Gela.

May 1989

On All Fronts 11
VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Partisan player must get 17 or more points off the mapboard, 36% of hexrow J, on the south side of the mapboard. The Partisan player scores points in the following manner: 4 points per squad, 2 points per H&S and 3 points per leader (exited off the mapboard).

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are Ground Snow (E3.72).
2. All counters on the road (S14-5PS) receive a +2 TEM (in train).
3. No Quarter is in effect (A30.5).
4. Partisans may set up one squad HIP with a leader and/or SW.
5. No player may set fires (R5.11).
6. Partisans are Stealthy (A11.17).
7. Voluntary breaking (A10.41) is NA for the German player.
8. Only hexrows A-Q are in play.

AFTERMATH: Being jolted awake, the SS came under intensive fire. Overcoming their initial shock they were quick to break up the partisan attack. Although many of the partisans made good their escape, others were not so fortunate.
SEARCH AND DESTROY

"Rencounters ASL 88"
Russia, April 12, 1944. The Wosusska River was one of the numerous obstacles met by the 9th SS Panzer Division in its attempt to reach Tarnopol. The Engineers of the Division were prevented from establishing a bridge over the river by gunshots emanating from a T-34 dug on top of hill 167. An assault group was instructed to eliminate this threat.

Scenario Design by Y. Barette.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player wins if he destroys the armored cupola and if the bunker has been cleared of any unbroken Russian armed unit at the end of the game.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EIR are mud (E 5.6) and no wind at start.
2. The armored cupola is a dug-in T-34 M43 tank. The tank is considered HD.
3. The SS may not recombine HSs into squads.
4. Only hexrows A-P are playable.

AFTERMATH: At the moment the men of the assault group almost reached their goal, they were surprised by the presence of a bunker that repulsed them. However a second assault was more successful, destroying both the dug-in tank and the bunker.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the Japanese player must control 7 of the 9 clear hexes on the ridge (SSR #6) at game's end.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are wet with no wind.
2. This is a night scenario. The NVR is 3 throughout the entire game.
3. U.S. units are considered Fanatic (A10.8).
4. Battlefield Integrity does not apply.
5. The Brush actually represents the tall grass of the island. Treat as Grain for LOS/LOF purposes.

6. The Ridge is composed of those hexes circumscribed by the dark crest line on the mapsheet on page 11.
7. The Japanese:
   > Use Russian counters to represent Japanese units and EWs.
   > Japanese units are not subject to DM.

AFTERMATH: After repeated Banzai attacks and horrendous losses, the Japanese failed to take the ridge. The defensive line had been bent but it did not break.

[ELR 3] {SAN 4}

Elements of the 13th Army and the 1st Guard Tank Army set up east of hexrow O (incl), north of the river.
[ELR 4] {SAN 2}

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Russians must exit 20 points off board hex 7Y1 or be the last to occupy 5 of the 7 multi-hex buildings on board 10 by the end of the game.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. The ECs are moist with no wind.
2. There is a one-lane wooden bridge in hexes 7AA4-7AA8.
3. All buildings are wooden.
4. The river is shallow with no current. It may only be forded between hexrows X and CC, inclusive.

AFTERMATH: By August 18th the Russians had liberated the town of Sandomierz and surrounded two German divisions to the north of the town. The Soviets continued to beat back German counterattacks and expand the beachhead until by the end of August it was about 47 miles wide and 30 miles deep.
VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Soviet player needs 15 victory points at game's end to win. Each multi-hex building on board 22 is worth points equal to the number of hexes it occupies. Each squad/equivalent or AfV with functional MA exited through 22R7 lowers the victory requirement by one.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. ECs are Ground Snow. No wind. Roads are not plowed. All buildings except 22W8 are single story. Kindling and set demos are NA.
2. Due to their exhausted condition, the 8-3-8s have an ELR of 3 and are subject to ELR replacement. They are replaced by (Finnish) 5-3-8/2-3-8s. The 5-3-8s are treated as German in all respects but are considered to be Green troops and are penalized accordingly. All Germans are Assault Engineers for Close Combat purposes.
3. All Soviet AFVs are radio equipped. The 82mm mortar has no smoke.
4. Only hexrows R-GG, on both boards, are in play.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the Canadian player must exit 10 victory points (See SSR #5) off the west edge by game’s end.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are moderate with a Mild Breeze blowing from the west.
2. Canadian units enter, turn 1, on the east edge of board 16. All infantry units must enter mounted and remain so until the German player fires.
3. German Engineers had cut fire lanes through the wheatfields. Therefore, there is no LOS/LOF hindrance to wheatfield hedges which are ADJACENT to hedges where the German units set up. The 8-3-6s are considered Assault Engineers (H1.28).
4. Place officer “F” with V1 on 16T2 and V3 on 16T3 and US on 16S2.
5. Each Canadian AFV exited (with functioning MA) is worth 5 victory points (without = 4 vpts). Only “Good Order” MMCs and leaders exited count toward victory points as per A24.3.
6. IMPORTANT: Foxholes are not considered a Fortification in this scenario and retain their HIP status until their occupants fire or a “Good Order” enemy unit moves adjacent.

ARMOR LEADER
NORMANDY
Introduction
GOING UPTOWN: The most exciting thing about AL-N is that now, for the first time, you can play ASL on an Operational level. AL-N also gives you the basics for recreating your own large-scale battles. Basically, what you are doing is playing an Operational level game but resolving combat not with a die roll, but with a scenario.

FOR THE INQUIRING MIND: Why does AL-N look like it does? Simple, it was designed so that two opponents could play a large-scale ASL game on a card or dining room table with only a handful of counters and a minimum of rules and mapboards.

You do not need a large area to set up and play this game; nor do you have to keep it continually set up; nor do you need to combine two or three counter sets. Since each force is standard you can use the same force (Continued on page 7.)

On All Fronts 2 Armor Leader - Normandy
Operational Counters.
Each player’s OB is divided into separate “Forces”. Each force is represented by one counter. Each counter has two sides which show whether the “Force” is moving or set up.

Example: Operational Counters

German Operational Counters
Moving / Set Up

British Operational Counters
Moving / Set Up

Pre-Game Set Up.
Before the game starts, both players place their Operational Counters in their respective “Staging Area” boxes as shown on the Operational Map on page 11.

TURNS.
There are 15 Operational Game Turns.

Operational Game Turn.
Each turn consists of a Movement Phase and a Tactical Phase where combat is resolved in the form of a 7-turn scenario. The British player moves first in each Operational Turn.

1. Movement Phase.
   During the Movement Phase each player can either move one counter (or stack of two) or rearrange a counter (or stack of two) in the following manner.
   Movement: Using the Operational Map sheet (page 11) each player moves one

Rearrange: Turn one counter (or stack of two) over to the “set-up” side to show that the units are now set-up.

Turn: One counter (or stack of two) over to the “movement” side so that they may move together in the next Operational Turn.

Split arrangement: In a stack of two you may (during an Operational Turn) turn one counter over to the “set-up” side and leave the other with the “movement” side up but they are now no longer considered a stack. You may turn a counter to its “movement” side and form a Stack with another counter (on the same mapboard block) which also has it movement side “up”.

Stack: A Stack may be composed of two and only two Operational Counters which both have their “moving” side facing up.
Stacking: There are no stacking limits. Any number of Operational counters may occupy a Mapboard Block.

After the Movement Phase is completed combat takes place on each Mapboard Block on which there are opposing counters present. If more than one combat is to take place then the players decide the order in which they are to be resolved. The players then proceed to the Tactical Phase to resolve the "Combat" in a scenario format of 7 turns.

Operational counters may not move again until the opposing force occupying the same Mapboard Block has been eliminated. See "Locked" on page 6.

2. Tactical (Scenario) Phase

Scenario Special Rules:

1. EC are wet. No wind at start.
2. Neither side has WP.
3. Only one Armor Leader per Tank Force is allowed.
4. British AFVs are not gyrostabilized.
5. Each scenario is 7 turns.
6. All Streams are shallow.
7. Fz IVs in the 3rd Kompanie are equipped with Schuerzen D11.2.
8. Whenever a successful Sniper Check occurs on a MPH, reduce the Sniper Activation Number for that "block" only. Use the higher SAN upon entry of another "friendly" infantry force. Tank regiments have no SAN.
9. Neither side may ever set up HDP.
10. Neither side may ever Bore sight.
11. Place overlays normally as indicated.

Artillery

Artillery Fire is resolved during the Tactical Phase.

German Artillery - The German player has ONE module each of 155mm, 105mm and 81mm. The German Regimental Artillery Officer is an Offboard Observer (C1.63). He has an LOS to ALL Mapboard Blocks. To discern the LOS for each individual Mapboard Block use the following:

- Blocks #1, #2, #3, #4, & #7: Determine LOS as if there was a two-story building (B23.32) on hexes 16EE2, 14C8, 4P8, 13F7 and 19Q9/33S1; with the spotter on the highest level (not rooftop).
- Blocks #5, #6, #8, & #9: Determine LOS as if there was a three-story building on hexes 19C9, 6P9, 22DD5 and 17T2, respectively.

British Artillery - The British player has ONE module of 105mm (normal). The British Artillery Observer is placed as directed on page 10.

Beginning The Scenario

How opposing forces enter the Mapboard Block during a scenario, who moves first, and who sets up first is determined by the position of the Operational Counter at the end of the Movement Phase of the Operational Turn. How forces enter during a scenario is determined by how the Operational Counter entered the Mapboard Block during the Movement Phase (via a main road, country road or by a cross-country access route).

How forces are placed on a mapboard block is determined by the status of the Operational Counter (moving / set up) at the end of the Movement Phase.

How to Set Up

Part A

If your Force counter shows the set up side at the end of the Operational Turn then your "Force" may set up prior to your opponent entering the Mapboard Block. Your Force sets up first within seven hexes of hex Q6 of the Center Board of the Mapboard Block. Your opponent moves first.

The German player may set up concealed where applicable. He may roll normally for concealment and for entrenchment.

On All Fronts

4 Armor Leader - Normandy
The British player suffers a penalty in that he may not set up normally for concealment due to the presence of the German Offboard Observer.
He may roll normally for entrenchment attempts.

If your Force counter shows the set up side during the Operational Turn then your "Force" may set up prior to your opponent entering the Mapboard Block. Your Force sets up first within seven hexes of hex B6 of the Center Board of the Mapboard Block. Neither side may ever set up Hidden. Your opponent moves first.

Trucks do not have to be set up onboard in this instance but are considered to be "parked" somewhere offboard. However, if you choose to set up some or all of your trucks on the MBF then they risk elimination just like any other unit and should be so recorded on your OB sheet.

How to Set Up:
Part B.
If your Force counter was already present on the Mapboard Block, showing the "moving" side up (had moved there in a previous turn but had not been flipped over to the set up side), and an opposing counter now enters (moves first) the mapboard block then your force sets up first with the infantry loaded on trucks on the half of the center board on which you entered previously (hexrows B-N or T-P, respectively). All counters must set up on or adjacent to the road.

How To Enter (See Figure 1):
When two opposing Operational counters are placed on the same Mapboard Block during the same Operational Turn both their forces enter the Mapboard Block on turn 1 to begin the Tactical (Scenario) Phase. The Operational counter which was placed on the Mapboard Block first moves first. Entering on a Main Road (+)

If entering from the north or south, place mapboard #16 so that hexrow "A" abuts with the center board of the Mapboard Block. Set up your units anywhere on the hexrows G-R, inclusive.

If entering from the east or west, place mapboard #16 so that hexrow "10" abuts with the side mapboard of the Mapboard Block. Set up your units anywhere on hexrows numbered 5 or less.

In both instances all vehicles are considered in motion and all have full MP's. The mapboard is removed after turn 2 and any units remaining thereon are considered eliminated.

Entering on a Country Road (+)

If entering from the north or south, place mapboard #19 so that hexrow "A" abuts with the center board of the Mapboard Block. Set up your units anywhere on the hexrows G-R, inclusive.

If entering from the east or west, place mapboard #19 so that hexrow "10" abuts with the side mapboard of the Mapboard Block.

Figure 1
Example: Off board entry.
Block. Set up your units anywhere on hexrows numbered 5 or less.
In both instances all vehicles are considered in motion and all have 1/2 MP's. The mapboard is removed after turn 3 and any units remaining thereon are considered eliminated.

Entering from Cross-Country (*)

If entering from the east or west, place mapboard #4 so that hexrow "10" abuts with the side mapboard of the Mapboard Block. Set up your units anywhere on hexrows numbered 5 or less.

If entering from the north or south, place mapboard #4 so that hexrow "A" abuts with the center board. Set up your units anywhere on hexrows G-R, inclusive.

The mapboard is removed after turn 4 and any units remaining thereon are considered eliminated.

In both instances all vehicles are considered in motion and all have 1/2 MP's. Trucks and what to do with them. Players may move their trucks off the MPB (after unloading the infantry) back onto the "phantom" mapboard (#16, #19 or #4) where they await the outcome of the scenario in safety.

They are considered to have re-entered when, during the Operational Turn, you flip your Operational Counter over to the "mounted" side.

Ending the Scenario

At the end of the 7th turn one of two things happens:
A.) Eliminated - One side is removed if it has suffered casualties that have reduced it to the level that it is no longer a Combat Effect Force.

To the right of each force is a bracket with two numbers separated by a slash. The number to the left is the starting Casualty Point number (A26:21). The one on the right is the ending number. When its Casualty points are reduced to that point it is eliminated and removed from play.

Remove the Operational counter from the mapboard block. An Infantry Force's number is based solely on the number of infantry units, not trucks.

Note: Each force is considered a separate entity. Remnants of one force may not join with another to escape its fate (i.e. Elimination).

Also, if not enough trucks are available to move the infantry units then over stacking by a HS per truck is permitted. Infantry units may also ride tanks and use captured trucks. The surviving player now adjusts his Force's OB to reflect its losses. He also has an extra Rally Phase in which to attempt to repair and rally units (normally).

B.) Locked - Both forces remain onboard. Both forces are still locked in combat and will "fight again" during the next Operational turn. There is no extra Rally Phase, in this instance. Both sides will continue the same struggle at the end of the next Operational Turn. (They will pick up exactly where they left off for another 7-turn scenario so be sure to record the location and status of all counters for future reference.)

The scenario ends on the last turn and the players move on to the next scenario or to the next Operational turn if there are no more "conflicts" to resolve.

Keep a record of the losses to each "Force" by indicating the changes on your own OB chart (page 9 or 10, respectively).

3. Victory Conditions

Victory is determined at the Operational level. The side which is the only one to have an Operational Counter on three of the four center Mapboard Blocks (#2, #5, #8, & #9) at the end of the Operational Game is the winner. If neither side has three, then it is a draw.

AL-N takes ASL where it has never been before.
TIGER: THE HISTORY OF A LEGENDARY WEAPON 1942-45 by Kleine/Kuhn
Translated from German it is now available for the first time in English from John J. Fedorowicz Publishing, 267 Whitegates Ct, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada R3K II.2.
Described as one of the finest books written on German armor in WWII, it is just that! Tigger is an account of the development, career and battles of the Tiger tank based on the war diaries of several battalions, individual diaries, letters and evaluations. What makes it spring to life from the pages is that it is a story told by the people who fought inside the Tiger from 1942 to the very last days. A story that spans the Eastern Front, Africa and Europe, and includes The Panzer Tiger I & II as well as the Tank Hunters and Sturmtiger.

Introduction (from p. 2) to play each succeeding scenario and you only need to have three mapboards on the table at any one time.
Unlike most "monster" games you can play AL-N with one counter set.
The Mapboards - If you used mapboards to cover the entire battle area involved you would have needed something like 112 mapboards (16 mapboards wide and 7 and 1/2 deep). Now, you only need 27!
PLAYING JUST THE OPERATIONAL GAME. Since you must now think tactically on two different levels, it is recommended that you first play several turns or even a game on two at the "Operational" level and do not play any resulting scenarios. This will give you a feel for moving the different forces and the tactics and strategies that are now applicable. To help you we've devised a rudimentary combat resolution system for the Operational level.

OPERATIONAL GAME COMBAT RESOLUTION. The OCCR Chart on page 8 is a simple way to resolve combat when opposing counters are on the same Mapboard Block. Each player rolls one (no matter how many of his counters are on the MPB). Modify the dr according to Table A on page 8 and consult the Table B on page 8 for the result.
IMPORTANT! Once again, this is not a "tried and true" game system. It is merely a device for you to use to get the "feel" of an operational level of play.
GOING BEYOND: In AL-N you are given the basics. After playing it, you will want it to do more and you will start to experiment with new rules, different battles, Ob's, etc. When you send us your variants be sure to include your playtest results.

You don't need a garage and a ping pong table to set up AL-N.
You don’t need 4 or more players to play AL-N.

Instructions:

Cut out each block. Paste them on the front and back of a piece of cardboard or posterboard. Be careful to make sure they are aligned properly and that the front of the counter matches the back. Then cut out each individual counter.

AL-N. You can play a monster game with a handful of counters and three mapboards.

the Sure and Our rivers and make limited advances westward to take blocking positions south of Bastogne. The 352nd Volksgrenadier Division, composed mainly of ex-Luftwaffe and Kriegsmarine soldiers, had to assault a sector defended by the 109th US Infantry Regiment. On December 10th after the opening artillery barrage, the 915th Volksgrenadier Regiment crossed the Our and pushed aside the American outposts achieving a fast penetration up to the northeast of Diekirch. However, the other sister regiment was pinned on the river banks by the well-directed fire of the US artillery batteries emplaced near Diekirch. On the 17th, the Germans, hampered by US counterattacks, spread through the rear areas near the ridgeline 300 yards to the north of the Americans called the "Skyline Drive". There they threatened the gun positions of the US Field Artillery batteries.

woods on their highest level only. Crazes do not exist anymore. (Note: If several levels are present in the same hex, only the highest part is wooded. If only one level is present; woods cover the entire hex. 4. The US player gets one 105mm OBA module.

AFTERMATH: By mid-afternoon the Germans were pressing in on the US batteries emplaced at the northwest of Diekirch. The gunners fought as infantry while the fire from a neighboring battery blasted the woods east of the road in which the enemy assembled. Hard pressed, the gunners were relieved by two friendly counterattacks. Two AA halftracks raced up the Skyline Drive and drove squarely into the files of German infantry on the road, their quad 50s blazing. While one was destroyed by enemy fire, the other one fought its way to help the batteries. Moreover, one tank platoon with supporting infantry, previously sent to the north to help the Hoscheid garrison, came back into the fight rolling down on the enemy. The batteries were saved but the positions were clearly no longer tenable.

ON THE COVER
Our cover art is entitled Norway 1940 and depicts a scene and counter art for a French Foreign Legion scenario and counters designed by William G. Lacy. The scenario (with counters) was playtested at the 4th Annual SL Rally in 1989 and both scenario and counters appear in issue #2 of the "Playester's Journal". [For those who subscribed: "Playester's Journal" #2 was mailed the first week of January, 1990.]

cut out a square space, creating a stencil in a sense, which allows only the image to be exposed, and place the two sheets face down on the copier. The copier only sees the image, and not the other information on the page. The colored page with the new image comes out surrounded by blank colored paper which can be reused. Tan paper works for several nationalities, Butternut for Japanese and Blue for French (there is a perfect blue available at most quick-copy stores for them).

5. I am now able to cut the counter images out with an X-acto knife and paste the paper square onto an old counter using the butt of the knife to press firmly around the edges. Use very little paste.

The flip side of the counters is handled in the same fashion, but for me generally, in a simpler and less careful manner because they aren’t seen as frequently (Except the counters that I usually command!).

The final optional step includes brushing an artist lacquer over the "typing paper dull" surface of the new counters to give them that shiny professional look. It is important to have a good copier with the ability to reduce and lighten copy. With the ability to reduce you may draw your own images, make modifications to enlarged squad or leader counter images, and type names and values, which may all be reduced to a size compatible with the standard ASL counters, and which are used in process #3 above.

Your possibilities are limited only by your imagination. This technique, while being fun and useful in its own right, comes into best play when combined with other DYO projects involving new maps, scenarios, and other theatres of war. Ω

NRS (cont. from p. 5) force another Sherman (lost to a Psk when it tried to move on).

At this point the US player thought he had it made but all the fire and smoke had made him forget about the AA gun that had remained quiet and hidden during the proceedings. When a US squad moved adjacent as it attempted to exit, the AA gun opened up and the counter flew off the mapboard. In turn, it was destroyed by a Sherman two hexes away during Advancing Fire.

The path now clear, the US player managed to exit the following: A Sherman (7pts), 8-1(2), 8-0(1), 5-4-6(2), and 6-6-6s (x5=10pts) for a total of 22 Victory Points.

THE MAORIS RETREAT
Near Platanias.
Crete. May 24, 1941: Maltese airfield had fallen and the Germans were flying in ME-109s, artillery and a mountain division. Crete was doomed.
(cont. on page 9).

Elements of the 28th Maori Bn., 5th NZ Brigade enter turn 1 on the west edge.
[ELR: 3] [SAN: 4]

Elements of the 5th Mountain Division enter turn 1 or later on the west edge
[ELR: 4] [SAN: 2]

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The British must have 25 victory points at game's end to win.
Victory Points are received for German casualties and for good order British units east of hexrow 6 on board 19, in any terrain that gives a positive TEM (including that due to height advantage).

SPECIAL RULES:
1. DC are Dry. The weather is Clear with no wind at start.
2. The main north-south road on board 5 does not exist. It is considered to be a shallow stream. Bridges do not exist at SY8 and SY9. The stream is the road hexes from 5A5/6 to Y10-E6-GG5/6. (Further clarification on page 9.)

3. The German can receive Air Support (E7).
When it arrives it will be in the form of one 1939 FB with no bomb load. Due to the fluid battle lines, the fighter has a ML of 7 for Sighting TCs. Should a Sighting TC reveal a unit to be a dummy, the aircraft may not choose another target for that player turn.

4. The British are Stealthy (A17) but suffer from Ammunition Shortage (A19,131).
5. The trucks and AA guns are Captured Equipment (A21).

The entire 5th Brigade was ordered to fall back to a new defense line while the 28th Maori Battalion acted as rearguard. The exhausted Maoris would have to make for the new line while being pursued by fresh German mountain troops.

SPECIAL RULES
SSR2. Road hexes 5A/56-13-10-EE6-GG5-6, inclusive, are considered to be a shallow stream. Bridges do not exist at 5Y8 and 5Z9. Roads 9I1, SQ1-R1, SQ10-X9, FY1-EE5, plus all roads on boards 17, 19, and 9 exist normally. The bridge at SEE2 still exists.

AFTERMATH: The Maoris skillfully held back the Germans while withdrawing. Messerschmitts and captured Bofors AA guns rained bullets and shells on them. The last obstacle was an open field which they crossed across while AA guns and small arms fire raked them. The Maoris had reach the safety of the ridge. The next day they were again ordered to withdraw.

PARATROOPERS (continued from page 11) Several days earlier, a group of paratroopers had taken cover in an olive oil factory. Now, with the help of a tank and three artillery pieces, Colonel Campbell was determined to take that factory.

SPECIAL RULES and may not be set up hidden or concealed, if in the LOS of a German unit.

5. The Germans have MOL (A22.6) but are subject to Shortage (A19.131). All German units may set up concealed. AFTERMATH: The point-blank fire from the artillery pieces proved to be too much for the Germans and after a short time they surrendered.

If you have made this far then you are probably to the point of getting out the checkbook. Based on comments and purchases at a recent convention, MBT could be the game for the next year as it appears to have grabbed the attention of the gaming community at large. But is it SQUAD LEADER for the 1990s? Yes and no. The scale is basically the same but the approach is different. The minute level of desul of ASL is missing but the feel is similar. Squad Leaders will find comfort in the differing unit capabilities but will have to learn some habits. Hunt overrunning modern infantry in a very quick way to lose a lot tanks!

Tournament (from p. 3) bid by awarding him 4 points for a victory while giving the non-bid side only 3 points in victory. The winner of the bid side also received a "Luck Chit" which he could use to reroll any one roll but upon doing so passed the chit to the other player. (This was used to reduce the luck factor present in many scenarios.)

This made for some extremely competitive bids as the good players, wanting to get the 4 points, would tend to bid low on a scenario versus a weaker opponent. This resulted in very few walk-overs and made for many close scenarios. One went to the last die roll on the last turn in CC.

We gave them a choice of 6 scenarios for the three game round robin so any particular taste could be satisfied. There were two deluxe scenarios, two all infantry scenarios, one all armor scenario, and a mechanized assault. The semi-final and final were both combined arms.

Out of all this came our winners:

1st Place: Gary Fortenberry
2nd Place: Tim Cooper

Each went 3-0 in the Round Robin but Gary earned 12 points for top seed in the playoffs while Tim earned 9 points for second seed. (Gary won with the bid side each time while Tim won with the non-bid side in every scenario.)

The tournament was held at the Ramada Inn Northwest in Houston, Texas, over the Labor Day weekend. Aftermath: The Germans attack, accompanied by a hail or mortar fire, almost succeeded in pushing the Paras off the ridge. Fighting from reverse crest positions the Paras put up a determined defense and even succeeded in disabling several Tiger tanks with bazookas by firing at the exposed undercarriage of the tank as it came over the crest of the hill. The German attack then began to falter and was finally halted by the timely arrival of naval gunfire coupled with the arrival of elements of the 45th Division. An ensuing counterattack led by Col. Gavin overran the forward German positions forcing the Panzergrenadiers to retire and thus ending the threat to the beachhead.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player needs a 45 victory points at game's end to win and he must destroy all type "A" and "B" cupolas. The Belgian wins by avoiding these conditions. Victory points are awarded as follows:

- 3 vp's for each type "A" or "B" cupola destroyed.
- 2 vp's for each type "C" cupola destroyed.
- 1 vp for each type "D", AA gun or AT gun destroyed. 1 vp for each pillbox without a manned functioning HMG at game's end. 1 vp for each German squad/equivalent remaining on the fort at game's end and every 4 Belgian casualty points equals 1 vp (FRU). Note: cupolas, AA/AT guns do not count towards casuality point totals.

SPECIAL RULES:

[1.] EC are moderate with no wind, Wind direction is east. The canal is deep with moderate current flowing north. The moat (Q4-Y8) is deep, no current. The stream is shallow. An anti-tank ditch exists G1-C3-C13-T14 elevated roads exists on N7-Q9-Q10-J13 and S8-T8-S9. All off-board terrain is treated as level 0 for purposes of determining a glider's ILH (ignore rule E3.221). Any glider that lands offboard is eliminated.

[2.] All rules for Cupolas are in effect. Use the CE side of counter to represent a wreck. Type "D" cupolas are in effect. Cupolas leave no wreckage and cupolas are in the same hex as a pillbox are in a separate location. An immobilization result during close combat vs a cupola is treated as shock instead. Historically the 2 type "C" cupolas in hexes S8 and U9 turned out to be dummy installations which fooled the Germans. To simulate this the Belgians must make a secret die or chit draw prior to play. On a 1-3 the cupola is real. On a 4-6 it is a dummy. The Belgian player need not reveal this until it changes CA, fires, is discovered by search, or destroyed. The HMGs in the pillboxes may be removed but only as a HMG.

[3.] To simulate the surprise achieved by the Germans, all Belgian units are frozen until the Belgian player turn 2. They may not move or fire except rout or close combat (and includes no sniper activation). The AA gun and crew in Hex H9 are exempt from this rule and may function normally. All Belgians are Lax and all Belgians have assault fire bonus. All elite Belgian units have an ELR: 4. All others have an ELR: 3.

[4.] Beginning with turn 3 the Belgian will make a reinforcement dr. He will receive a number of 4-5-7 squads equal to that dr, up to a maximum of 20 for the scenario. In addition, if the dr is a 4 he will receive 1 support weapon and 1 leader. On a subsequent dr of 1-3 he will receive a MG3 or a 4-6 x 50mm mortar. To determine the leader use A18.2 (leader creation table). The first leader that appears will also have a radio for a module of 70mm OBA (HE only) with normal ammo. These reinforcements appear during the movement phase in any tunnel exit. Tunnels exist in all buildings and pillbox hexes. Use normal tunnel exiting rules. Any unit in a tunnel exit hex that is forced to rout is removed from play and will not count towards casualty point totals.

[5.] Any/all German squads may deploy at start. All Germans are treated as assault engineers for CC purposes. Due to the high level of training achieved by the paratroopers they are immune to PAACT and also receive a -1 DRM for demo charge placement. The German sniper may not be activated until the AFPs of their first turn. The German will receive random air support in the form of Stuka(s) w/bombs. Determine entry and number of aircraft received as per E7.2-7.21. The number of Stukas received will determine the number of turns they may remain on board. One Stuka is recalled after 3 turns, 2 after 2 turns and 3 after 1 turn.

[6.] Unfortunately, it was necessary to exceed countermix limits on several items. If Italian guns are not available, use Russian 45L AT gun and German Flak 30 AA instead. For the extra HMGs needed use Italian or Axis minor or Russian HMGs. For extra DCs use any. For extra 3-5-8 HIs use Frank. If the Belgian garrison reinforcements should require a leader and none are available (all in play) then use the next available leader of lesser quality. If no medium machine gun or mortar is available then use the other in its place. Addenda: The river is deep w/moderate current flowing north. The A-T ditch also exists in hexes O1-P1-P3. Remember, the 70mm OBA may only use HE and the type "B" copulas have a restricted field of fire as defined by their covered arc and arrows on the mapsheet. Also see page 12.

up must contain at least two MMCs. They are not considered to be in a Column.
3. The ponds on board 17 are ground level brush.
All buildings are stone. Hex 15G5 is ground level only while 15H5 contains a ground level and a level 1.
4. This scenario takes place at twilight and there is a +1 LV Hindrance DRM (E3.1). However, no night rules are in effect.
5. No Quarter (A20.3) is in effect for both sides.
6. The British may make Human Wave attacks (A25.23). All British elite and 1st line units are Stealthy (A11.17).
7. Only hexrows A-F on board 15 and hexrows
R-QG on board 17 are in play.

AFTERMATH: The Germans thought that the day’s fighting was over when the tanks withdrew and were surprised when the New Zealanders tore into them. In vicious house-to-house fighting, the Germans were destroyed. As darkness fell, Gallatas was once again in British hands.

pinpointed targets for their artillery, under cover of which the infantry slowly advanced. When they finally cleared the second ridge they were unable to advance in the face of the heavy fire emanating from the Russian positions in the forest. While the German battalion reorganized for the final thrust against the Russian main line of resistance, the battalion commander requested a dive-bomber attack against the Russian nerve center at the crossroad. As the German artillery joined in the fray, the 1st Battalion resumed its advance. Entering the forest the Germans found dead Russians and many discarded weapons. Tree snipers fired on the Germans so the German machine gunners sprayed the teeteppe. The 1st Battalion mopped up the forest as far as the crossroad and then turned east along the road to Kanev. A number of Russians defending the rear areas managed to escape. One commissar, who had been shooting his retreating comrades, killed himself with a hand grenade as some Germans closed in on him. The Russian minefields failed to delay the Germans; all were either detonated by artillery fire or betrayed by prisoners. Ω

On The Road To Victory Conditions: The German player must win both Parts 1 & 2, in order to win the scenario; otherwise, it is a Russian victory. In order to win Part 1, there can be no Good Order Russian squads (or their equivalent) on any hill hex of boards 2 or 9. The Germans win Part 2 if they control the crossroad (32W5) and the six hexes surrounding the crossroad, and there is no Good Order Russian MMC with a LOS to any of those hexes at game's end.

Kanev: Victory Conditions and Special Rules

Special Rules:
1. EC are moderate with no wind at start. The stream is dry.
2. In Part 1 the Russian receives only one module of 80mm OBA even though he has two Field Phones. They receive no OBA in Part 2.
3. In Part 1 the German receives one module of 100mm OBA. In Part 2 the German receives one module of 80mm and one module of 100mm OBA (Which can be used as a Creeping Barrage E1.2.7).
4. STUKAS. On turn one of Part 2, the German player receives air support in the form of three Stukas with bombs.
5. Any German units/SWs (except the radio) that survive Part 1 may be added to the German order of battle for Part 2 as long as they are not Wounded or Disabled. All surviving units/SWs are considered in Good Order and functioning even if broken/malfunctioned at the end of Part 1. Any Battle Hardening effects on brooes are retained.
6. Battlefield Integrity is in effect for both Parts 1 & II (exc. Battlefield Integrity does not apply to the Russians in Part 1).

Victory Conditions: To win, the German player must completely clear all whole hexes of board c of all Good Order Russian units. The Russian player wins by avoiding a German victory.

Special Rules:
1. EC are Wet with no Wind.
2. SS squads have Assault Engineer capability.
3. Russian 6-2-6s have Assault Engineer capability.
4. Russian T-34s are radio equipped.
5. There is no Russian Turn 10.

sion (located in the northern part of the city) were in imminent danger. At 1:00 PM Hauser ordered the retreat of his troops. They fought their way through the Udy sector of the city, with street fighting occurring in the southwestern and southern parts of the metropolis, as well. Twenty-four hours later, the rear guards of "Das Reich" had bashed their way through the burning town. "German Deutschland" Division had left their positions in the northwest of the city and fought their way through it, in the wake of Hauser's troops. As the last German troops were whizzing through deserted streets, they came under sniper attacks from the now infiltrated Russian troops. In the Red Square, partisans raised the Soviet banner. Khruskov was now temporarily lost, but Hauser's disobedience saved the two SS divisions in his Corps, as well as the famous "Deutschland" Division for further action. Additionally, the Russians misjudged this action as proof of the collapse of the front, as they presumed that the vaunted SS would never retreat against their Flieger's orders. This mistake encouraged "reckless" action on the part of the Soviet Front commanders as well as Stalin and STAVKA.

On February 17th, the Soviets were within sight of Manstein's headquarters at Zaporoze. Manstein's plan for "drawing out" the enemy forces seemed to be working very well. Indeed, On the 21st, the German counter-thrust began. The Germans enjoyed excellent coordination with the Luftwaffe for their efforts, and this certainly assisted the success of the counterattack. Between February 28 and March 3, 1943, the 1st SS Panzer Corps completely enveloped elements of the Soviet 6th Army (ironically). These Russians found themselves caught between the "Das Reich" Division and the "Totenkopf" Division ("Totenkopf") had joined the 1st SS Panzer Corps on February 19th and were forced back into the waiting armor (including Tiger Tanks) of the "Leibstandarte Adolf Hitler". This maneuver cost the Soviets much in men, tanks, and supplies, and also removed the main obstacle between the Germans and Khruskov.

On March 5th, Manstein ordered the 1st SS Panzer Corps to coordinate (and was subordinate to) with the 4th Panzer under the command of Col General Hermann Hoth. Manstein and Hoth planned to capture Khruskov by encirclement and coup de main, and thereby not waste strength in costly street fighting within the city. The "Das Reich" Division reached the western outskirts of Kharkov by March 5th after encountering "light" resistance. At this point the 1st SS Panzer Corps was to continue in an arc that would have carried it around the northern edge of Kharkov and then east to the Donetz River. Hauser, on the other hand, decided that he would likely take the metropolis by storm, thereby getting a "great" victory for his Corps. "Das Reich" was ordered to halt and regroup in the western suburbs and "Totenkopf" was sent around the northern edge to cut off any Russian retreat.

AFTERMATH from page 10. Despite encountering ferocious resistance at Red Square, the Germans with the assistance of some Mark IVs and Tiger tanks squashed all resistance in the city's center.

AFTERMATH from page 11. The final ferocious battle for Kharkov began as the SS troops assaulted the tractor plant. With the aid of some armor, flamethrowers, and demolition equipment the Germans blasted their way into the Russian defensive positions. After some savage hand-to-hand fighting Soviet resistance within the city ceased. By late afternoon the battle weary German survivors trudged out of the tractor works and for the third time the beleaguered city of Kharkov changed hands.

Victory Conditions: To win, the German player must completely clear of all Good Order Russian units and hold the two stone multi-hex buildings which are on the east side of the anti-tank trench (SSR #2). The Russian player wins by avoiding a German victory.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are Wet with no Wind.
2. The Gully on board “d” is an anti-tank trench (B27.56). Hex dB5 should contain an AT trench counter which is defined as continuous from the gully and crosses dB5, dC5, to bN5, bO5. The Gully in dC5 continues in a straight line to dB5, dC5 to join the trench counter. In other words, the gully on board “d” completely bisects that board and cannot be bypassed or crossed by any vehicle on either side.

Desperate Measures
June 26, 1941. Von Manstein’s rapid advance towards Leningrad had not been without difficulty. On the morning of the 26th the 8th Panzer Division was poised outside of Dvinsk desperate to seize its vital bridges across the Dvina River intact. Failure meant the advance would be stalled.

Elements of the Recon Bu, 8th Panzer Div. enter on the west edge on turn 1. [ELR: 4] {SAN: 3}

Victory Conditions: The German player receives victory points (as per A26.21) for each unit/vehicle exited off the east edge and/or north edge east of Y1. (incl). To win he must exit 19 victory points and not lose more than 11 casualty points.

Special Rules:
1. EC are moderate with no wind.
2. The Russian may set up two squads and the leaders/SW stacked with them using HIP.
3. If set up in a woods hex, the location of the trench counter need not be revealed until its hex is entered/ searched by a German unit, or until its positive DRM is used to influence the outcome of a combat result.

AFTERMATH: By 0600 a.m. fighting was still going on in the town but amazingly the bridges had been captured intact at the very moment the sentries were fumbling with the demolition charges. The following day the 3rd Motorized Infantry Division pulled off a surprise crossing of the river. The rapid advance had startled both the Russians and the Germans. The advance to Leningrad could now continue.

About The Scenarios

"Bloody Sadzot" was the second design in the trilogy. The first was the night attack by the SS (issue #95). The second one was the counterattack the following morning and the third was the pursuit of the survivors into the forest. As initially planned all three were to have been completed and released together so that players might follow the sequence of the actual events more closely. Unfortunately, time and circumstances altered the "master plan". For instance, the second design ran into problems and a better design by Vince replaced it but not after some nail biting as playtest results began to fluctuate somewhat and then even out. Sadzot #3 also took an unexpected turn and it will, hopefully, appear in the next issue to complete the series.

Bloody Sadzot (from p. 11)

Aftermath: The paratroopers had to charge across an open field directly into the fire of the German machine guns. Luckily, due to the cold, most of the troopers had taken cover in the houses. Once across the field, the Village was cleared in house-to-house combat. Before the morning was over, 150 SS had fallen and Sadzot was again in American hands.

Chance Encounters

Special Scenario Rules:
1. EC: Dry with no wind for the entire scenario.
2. Only bocrows M-GG are in play.
3. Russians suffer from Ammunition Shortage (A19,131).
4. Stream is Shallow (B20,42).
5. Russian units are placed on board randomly as per Steps 1-4.

Step 1: Each time a German force (either a MMC or stack) expends a MP during the MPb the Russian player makes an activation dr. If the dr is the number then a Russian force is activated. The number of Russian forces that may be activated during a turn may not exceed the turn number. Consequently, only one Russian force may be activated on turn 1, two on turn 2, three on turn 3, etc.

Step 2: The Russian player then makes a second dr to determine which force is activated (on a dr of 6, roll again) and places the corresponding force on board anywhere (but not adjacent) within four hexes (incl. of the German unit which activated it). All units comprising the Russian force do not have to be placed in the same hex location. They can be placed in adjacent locations or hexes. Russian player's choice.

Note: Continue to roll for which force gets activated if you roll the number of a force that has already been activated.

Step 3: Russian units on board do not have to engage in combat but may be placed under "?” counters Russian player's choice. The Russian player is also allocated a certain number of additional "?” counters to be used as "dummies" which may be used in part or in total at that time.

Step 4: Once a Russian force is placed on board it may move and fire normally.

Russian units may only be activated and placed on board during the German movement phase.

does the German "mop-up" these remnants? Mostly, it is essential to get the Russians off the board ASAP in order to have the maximum time to kill them. It is a good idea to try for prisoners, those double points can make the difference (6 pts. for that 9-2!)

Summary: So is Mga a good time? Sure! Want to try some bocrow? Change down that road! Think you're a chess master or statistician? Calculate the odds of which force might appear and where. Any choice is possible and any or all might work. Solitaire can add to the enjoyment - Your best leader dead in the street because you rolled a "1" on turn 1? Set back up and start again! About The Scenarios

"Deadly Prey" (Sadzot #3) took an unexpected turn when it became the second in the solitaire scenario series. Like "Chance Encounters" it was not specifically designed and playtested as a solitaire scenario but was to be the third in the series of 'regular' (Sadzot) scenarios and was intended to simulate the pursuit of the SS in the woods outside of the town following the U.S. counterattack. Since the scenario setting so closely resembled that of the solitaire format it was redesigned and playtested that way.

So there you have the story of the three Sadzot scenarios (issues #5 and issue #6) and the rather unusual "birth" of the third. One final note. Both the Sadzot and "Road To Leningrad" series were designed as possible Rally tournament scenarios. I usually draft several designs for use at the Rally. Because some work. Some do not and some work very well. Thus, I am able to select what I feel are those which possess the highest enjoyment factor for the tournament players.

Now, let us turn our attention to 'Nasty Business', the second of the Road To Leningrad designs and the first scenario played in the ASL Classic Tournament at the 1991 SL Rally.

All four scenarios take place over a four-day period in and around the town of Mga, outside of Leningrad.

This town was not an objective of the German Army nor were any preparations made to defend it by the Russians. Yet it was an important railroad center between Leningrad and Moscow. Its importance would soon be realized by both sides and the usual price would be paid for its possession, more than once.

This number indicates the number of movement phases the vehicle may move. The chit drawn does not have to be revealed to the French player until the scenario ends. Elements of the Stalin Line appear on board 14 as per SSR (Tables A & C).
[ELR: 3] [SAN: 5]

Armored Cupola (D9.5) represents emplaced turrets from T-18 tanks.
MA 37mm: AF is 0. ROF 1.

Reconnaissance elements of the 3rd SS Division (Tokenkopf) set up and enter as per
SSR #2. [ELR: 5] [SAN: 2]

Note: 4-6-8s are considered Assault Engineers (H1.22).

VICTORY POINTS: At the end of the game the German player is awarded victory points as follows:
Cupola destroyed = 5. Discovered = 3
Pillboxes destroyed = 5. Discovered = 3 and Russian casualty points (as per 26.2) for occupants of Foxholes. From this total subtract your casualty points to arrive at a Final Score.

board that have not been eliminated. “Destroyed” means the occupants have been eliminated.

Personal Combat Record on page 12.

BASIC GAME VICTORY CONDITIONS: To win, the German player must Destroy and/or Discover four Pillboxes and/or Cupolas. A Pillbox or Cupola is ‘Discovered’ when it is placed on the mapboard. A Pillbox or Cupula is considered to be ‘Destroyed’ when its crew has been eliminated or captured.

THE BLOODY SABER
September 16, 1939,
New Pinskiw, Poland. The speed and force of the German invasion threw the Polish Army into disarray. Although nearly crushed, some formations proved themselves more than equal to the Germans. One such unit was the 12th Uhlan, which surprised a German column.

Elements of the 14th Army set up as indicated and as per SSR #2.
[ELR: 4] (SAN: 2)

Elements of the 12th Uhlan Regiment
"Podolski", Wolynska Cavalry Brigade set up mounted in wood hexes south of hexrow AA with a coordinate of 3 or less. [ELR: 4]
(SAN: 2)

Victory Conditions: To win, the Polish player must have at least twice as many CVPs as the German. Any Pole which has not exited the board at game's end is considered eliminated. They need not be mounted and may exit off any board edge but all must exit off the same edge.

Special Scenario Rules:
1. EC are Moderate with no wind at start.
2. All German infantry and SWs begin the game Pinned and Marked with First Fire counters.
   All wagons must be loaded and in Motion. All units in Y6 must be mounted but are otherwise unrestricted.
3. Hex X6 is Open Ground
4. No Quarter (A20.3) is in effect for both sides.

A Pound Of (Horse) Flesh
by Vince Lewonski

The thunder of hooves, the glist of sunlight off of raised lances and sabers, the sight of a ton of horseflesh hunting toward you at breakneck speed...these sights would make your average soldier quiver with fear. Unfortunately, it won't make your average ASL player tremble with even the slightest anxiety. Considering that a single squad with no SWs will get three shots: First Fire, Subsequent First Fire, and Final Fire, all at -2 DRM, then this lack of concern seems justified. Small wonder that most players use horses like trucks with legs, dumping off passengers at the first opportunity. While many actions were conducted by dismounted cavalry, there were cases when mounted troops did wreak havoc. One such is portrayed in The Bloody Saber.

Polish Tactics - Most of the advantages are yours. SSR2 reflects the German's status as a disbanded column, while the First Fire markers reflect the surprise that the Poles accomplished. The first Polish turn will decide the game: Any Germans remaining after that will be harder to kill. There is more to a successful attack: than just charging. Remember that you can charge more than one hex if you have sufficient MFs. Charge with a HS against a unit marked with a Final Fire counter; maybe a bad FPF roll will do your work for you. If you don't want to risk charging a hex containing Residual Fire or broken Poles, dismiss next to it and use Advancing Fire or CC to "hurt" the Germans. Most importantly, make No Quarter work for you. With proper placement, most or all broken Germans can be eliminated for failure to rout.

German Tactics - Truly a sad day for the Wehrmacht. Much of the pace of the game will be determined by the Polish player. Still, any CVPs you earn will make the Pole's job that much harder, and with a -2 DRM, you will get some. Shoot only at adjacent or same hex cavalry. You'll need a lot of residual fire counters, so try to spread them around. Build a "wall" of residual fire that the cavalry must pass through. Try not to smile when a 2 FP Residual breaks a 9-1 and a squad, especially when both fail their Ball out MCs. After the first Polish turn, shoot at any Poles who are still mounted. Either unload the wagons or try to run away with them. Consider yourself lucky if you get a gun unlimbered and get any shots with it. Still, the threat may make the Pole charge recklessly, giving you good shots with the crew's small arms fire.

Rules clarifications:
1.) When charging, the horse is marked with a CX counter; this does not apply to the riders or their attacks. Already CX horses may not charge.
2.) Cavalry suffers a -1 DRM for attacks against them in CC and must add a +1 DRM to any attacks that they make in CC.
3.) Cavalry attacked by a fire attack or Residual Fire are not attacked again by any Residual Fire left in the hex should they unload/bail out.
4.) Wagons and other cavalry are legal targets for a charge. Scenario sources: The Long Walk by Slavomir Rawicz and The Polish Campaign 1939 by Zaloga & Maude.

AFTERMATH (from page 10) A scouting patio had failed to detect the cavalry unit, which charged out of the woods at the column. Once pest, they formed up again and charged back to complete the destruction before leaving the scene. However, their success had no effect in the long run. Warsaw surrendered on the 27th of September, and the Wolynskaja Cavalry Brigade was destroyed by the Russians on the same day.

Feb/Mar 1992
SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are Dry with no wind during the game.
2. The German player divides his units into three forces, in any manner he desires. Force #1 sets up on the road 13Y10, Y9, etc. and enters board 12 on turn 1. Force #2 sets up on the road 13Q10, Q9, etc. and enters board 14 on turn 2. Force #3 sets up on the board 13Q10, 19, etc. and enters board 14 on turn 3.
3. Play proceeds as follows:

Step 1 - AFV Movement

   a. German MP5: Prior to moving any AFV, make a TR. That TR is the amount of MP5 that the AFV case expend.
   b. Make a second TR. If the 2nd TR is > than the 1st TR, nothing happens; move the AFV normally. If the 2nd TR is ≤ the 1st TR, then an EVENT will occur as the AFV expends the last MP5 which equals the 2nd TR. This EVENT occurs at the moment the 2nd TR MP5 is expended, regardless of whether the vehicle is moving, changing its VCA, etc. If it lacks sufficient MP5 to enter another hex and thus 'trigger' an event then the event occurs in its hex as it uses up its remaining MP5.
   c. When an EVENT occurs, make a TR on the AFV Event Table (Table A). (Note: Events can only occur on Board 14.)
   d. During subsequent turns an entering Force always moves first. To load/unload a HT requires 1/4 of the DR/MMs, ESB is NA.
   e. Vehicle stops and ends it move with ≥ 4MP5 remaining it may 'trigger' yet another event. Make a TR. If the TR is < 4 then make another TR on Table A.
   f. PLACEMENT: Any number of Russian units may appear, those shown in the OBS represent only the types of Russian units that can appear. If an EVENT calls for Placement of a unit exceeding the counter-mix, make the appropriate substitution.

   Pillboxes/Cupolas/Foxholes are placed on board 14 as follows:
   1. Make a Random Direction TR (B.9), starting from the German unit that caused the EVENT.
   a. Pillboxes (only) must be placed east of the target so that they face in a westerly direction.
   Therefore, only a Direction of 1, 2, or 6 applies. Consequently, a TR of 3 = 1, 4 = 2, and 5 = 6.
   2. Place the Pillbox/Cupola/Foxhole in the nearest concealment terrain with an LOS (Hindrance DRM not ≤ 3) to the Discovering unit.
   If you are unable to place a Cupola/Foxhole in the Location proceed to the next hex in a clockwise manner until it can be placed.
   If still unable to place it. Then the target unit must make an additional Second TR as per Step 1b when it moves again.

   Pillboxes/Cupolas are placed with their CA/ TCA pointed toward the Discovering vehicle.

   These newly placed units fire immediately upon the unit which caused their Placement and will continue to do so until destroyed or out of LOS. In subsequent turns they will fire at any targets of opportunity (preferably AFVs, if in LOS).

Step 2 - Dismounted Infantry Movement

   German MP5: Prior to moving (EXC: Baiting Out D6.24, Loading D6.4 and Unloading D6.5) make a TR. If the colored die is the white die then an EVENT will occur. As soon as the unit/stack has expended one MP5 a TR on Table C (Infantry Event Table). (Note: Infantry units retain their usual MF allotment.) Foxholes are placed as per Step 1e above. A Minefield attacks in the moving unit(s) current Location.

Table A (AFV Event Table). Roll one die.
\[\begin{align*}
\text{dr} & = & \text{Hits mine, make a TR as per B28.51-52 on Table B.} \\
\text{dr} & = & \text{Fillbox with ATG, A28.51-52 on Table B.} \\ \text{dr} & = & \text{Armed Cupola (D9.5).} \\ \end{align*}\]

Table B (A-T Mine Factors per hex as per B28.51). Roll one die.
\[\begin{align*}
\text{dr} & = & \text{A-T Mine Factors per hex of 1.} \\
\text{dr} & = & \text{A-T Mine Factors per hex of 3.} \\
\text{dr} & = & \text{A-T Mine Factors per hex of 5.} \\
\end{align*}\]

Place A-T Mine counter in Location.

Table C (INF Event Table) - Roll one die.
\[\begin{align*}
\text{dr} & = & \text{Mines, make a TR on Table D.} \\
\text{dr} & = & \text{Foxhole, 2-3-7 & HMG.} \\
\text{dr} & = & \text{Foxhole, 2-3-7 & HMG.} \\
\text{dr} & = & \text{Foxhole, 4-4-7 & LMG.} \\
\end{align*}\]

Table D (Mines vs Inf) - Roll one die.
\[\begin{align*}
\text{dr} & = & \text{Make a TR on column 4 (IFT).} \\
\text{dr} & = & \text{Make a TR on column 4 (IFT).} \\
\text{dr} & = & \text{Make a TR on column 8 (IFT).} \\
\end{align*}\]

Place appropriate Minefield Counter in Location.

BLOOD SPECIAL SCENARIO
RULES continued.
6. U.S. are Stealthy, the Japanese are not.

Step 1. Each time an American force (either a MMC or sneak) enters a hex or location during the MP, make an activation die. If the die is the turn number, then a Japanese force is activated. The number of Japanese forces that may be activated during a turn may not exceed the turn number. Consequently, only one Japanese force may be activated on turn 1, two on turn 2, three on turn 3, etc.

Step 2. Then make a second die to determine which force is activated (on a die of 6, roll again) and place the corresponding force on board anywhere (but not adjacent) within five hexes (involves of the American unit which activated it. (Optional) Use a die to determine distance. All units comprising the Japanese force do not have to be placed in the same hex location. They can be placed in adjacent locations or hexes. Player's choice. (Optional) Use a die to determine if they stay and fight (1-4) or retreat back toward buildings (5,6). Note: if you roll the number of a force that has already been activated then roll again. A force may only be placed on board once.

Step 3. Once a Japanese force is placed on board it may move and fire normally. Japanese units may only be activated and placed on board during the American movement phase.

Step 4. ? Counter: The nature of the "?" counter is revealed as per the rules pertaining to Loss of Concealment. At that time make a die: dr 1 = roll again, dr 2-4 = nothing, dr 5 = 3-4/7 with MG, dr 6 = roll again.

Seaplane Variant:
The seaplane variant is simply meant to put some "fun" in the scenario and is not historically correct. It also seems to have a certain unbalancing effect as, I suppose (or hope), some of our enthusiastic players pursue its destruction with considerable zeal. The sight of a burning seaplane does appeal to the imagination. What do you think?

During the Japanese MP of turn 1 make a dr. On a die of 1: Place a Seaplane (glider counter) in hex 7D6. (Is not treated as a landing glider.)
On a die of 2-5. No Seaplane appears.
On a die of 6: Place two Seaplanes. One in hex 7D6 and the other in 7K6.

During the Japanese MP of each turn make a dr. On a die the turn number the Japanese Seaplane takes off (remove from board. Must survive any Defensive Fire) Destruction of Seaplane can be accomplished either by: (A) MG fire on the Vehicle row of the FT chart. A destroyed Seaplane is equivalent to control of one building for Victory purposes or (B) Control of seaplane hex. Ω

A Bridge For Panthers (continued from page 9) Hutton had one over the Outarhe River, held by the support staff of the 3rd Armored Division and a platoon of Engineers. It made a tempting target.

AFTERMATH: Mortar fire began falling on the village as the Panthers emerged from the woods. Two American tanks that had been awaiting minor repairs were quickly knocked out. However, fire from bazookas succeeded in destroying two of the Panthers, and the Germans fell back to await reinforcements.

Designer's Notes: The source was A Time For Trumpets, by Charles MacDonald. The people who playtested it liked it. -I think because it has a lot of drama and what I call ugly choices! Use the OBA for smoke or HE? Hide two full squads and try to take out the German infantry, or four HS and hope for a shot at a tank? Put the tanks CE and risk a stun? Stuff like that builds tension and keeps you up until two in the morning. Ω

INQUIRING MINDS LOOK AT
"ACROSS THE MEUSE" by Steve Barnett

This scenario came in two versions. I hope the second one (Bon Accueil) will appear in ON ALL FRONTS as well. I think you will find it very interesting to be the French. "Across The Meuse" (playtest title was Guderian Across the Meuse) is significant for a couple of reasons.

First, in a recent playtest poll (of the non-Japanese solitary designs) the players ranked it first of all the designs.

I must say that I prefer it as well because it finally gave me a chance to play a river crossing scenario. Something that I have just not been able to do. Is there a river crossing scenario? Did I miss something? If I did it does not matter now.

Also, as with "Stalin Line", the training is worth it. I know that if I play another river crossing scenario I will be less likely to have to look up rules and more likely to know what to do, when and how. If my opponent has not played it then he is at a distinct disadvantage.

Second, the options rule makes for an interesting second game. The players were pretty evenly split as to the use of the optional rule which I preferred. (In case you are interested in my opinion.) It gave me a chance to "see" just how effective the mobile artillery of the AFV could be. Should I use HE or smoke? Both? Should I switch? When? Trial and error has taught me a lot and I would recommend reading John Loy's article about "Chance Encounters" (#96) because it pretty well defines what the solitary scenario is all about and it is not all about winning or losing I can tell you that. It is more about developing your playing skills. You have a better idea of what to use, when and how.

Third, the use of an overlay. I hope that I do not offend anybody with this remark but why can't AH come up with stuff like this? I mean it is just so simple? It makes the "islands do not exist" rule just much easier on the eyes. With all the overlays they have come up with why not one to blank out the islands on board????

Now for some really interesting playtester input.

Playtest Notes:
by M. Harden

If an infantry unit enters a pillbox hex that has not been revealed the normal way then roll on Table A as if a boat was revealing it. Make the dr after the infantry has entered the hex.

road junction, which it did in spite of running into well-emplaced machine guns and dug-in tanks. It was now midday and the Brigade sent three of its battalions northeast towards Solaro and Ft. Pilastrino, hoping to find and destroy the Italian headquarters; the 2/4 was sent to Solaro, the 2/11 towards the harbor and the 2/8 to Ft. Pilastrino, and this in spite of RAF reports of a large Italian force assembling there. The 2/8 proceeded along the escarpment and suffered heavy losses from more dug-in tanks which it had to assault with grenades and antitank rifles (all its supporting armor had broken down), after which it blundered headlong into the Italian counterattack.

AFTERMATH: The Italian force numbered some 20 infantry and a dozen tanks of the M13/40 type which, even though considered to be obsolete, did quite well against the unsupported Australian Infantry, which tried gallantly to attack with the few carriers and Boyes antitank rifles they had. Help began to arrive however; first a captured Italian gun was pressed into service and shortly thereafter some antitank guns on portee mountings showed up, and finally when some Matildas from the 7th RTR came on the scene the Italian tanks beat a hasty retreat, not wanting to tangle with these heavily armored beasts. Though more hard fighting lay ahead, by the end of the day Pilastrino and Solaro had fallen and by early the next morning Tobruk had surrendered. Ω

ASL Solitaire Scenario TACTICAL EXERCISE:
TANK BUSTERS
JULY 5, 1943, Bobrik, in the Kursk Salient.
This scenario is meant to be a skill building exercise to help you learn the rules and tactics for Close Assault of AFVs (Reaction Fire D7.2).
Scenario design by T. Treadaway.
Playtested by M. Harden, S. Porter and M. Telson.

Elements of the 321st Rifle Rgt. set up as per SSR #4. Elite units with a DC or FT are considered Assault Engineers. [ELR: 3] {SAN: 4}.

Table A
The AFV may have entered a hex where an enemy unit has set up HIP.
1. Make a dr on Table B.
2. Nothing there.
3. Make a dr on Table B.
4. Nothing there.
5. Make a dr on Table B.

Table B
The AFV has entered a hex containing:
1. Nothing there.
2. 6-2-8, DC.
3. Nothing there.
4. 4-5-8, 8-1.
5. Nothing there.
6. 4-5-8, FT.

Elements of the 20th Panzer Division, PzJab Abteilung 654 enter on turn 1 along the north edge as per SSR #3. [ELR: 4] {SAN: 0}.

Game 1

Game 3

Optional Games:

Games 2 and 3.

Option A: Use 4 Tigers or 4 Panthers in place of the 4 Elephants.

Option B: Mix and match (German AFVs) for the 3rd game. Compose a force of 4 AFVs of the three types.

TACTICAL EXERCISE To win: you, the Russian player, must destroy 2 AFVs.
SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are DRY with no wind.
2. Only hexrows FF-O are in play.
3. One German AFV enters on BB0 and moves along hexrow BB until it is destroyed or exits at BB10. Another German AFV enters on W1 and moves along hexrow W until it is destroyed or exits at W9, X9, Y10. Another German AFV enters on U1 and moves along hexrow U until it is destroyed or exits at U10. Another German AFV enters on Q1 and moves along hexrow Q until it is destroyed or exits at Q10. Note: German AFVs will execute overruns.
4. Each time a German AFV enters a hex which contains Concealment Terrain, make a dr on Table A.

NEW ALLIES (ASL version) Island of Kos, Greece. October 3, 1943. German paratroopers landed at dawn on the beaches near Marmari after an air bombardment. Under the onslaught, Allied troops split into small groups and retreated toward the hills. A company of the DLI went westward and eventually linked up with a battery of 75mm Italian guns which were still in action although

SSR #6. [ELR: 2] {SAN: 0}

Elements of the German Landing Force enter on the east edge of board 4 on turn 1.
[ELR: 5] {SAN: 2}

Victory Conditions:
The German player must possess or have destroyed each gun of the artillery battery at/by scenario’s end. Gun self-destruction (A9.73) by the Allies is NA

Special Rules:
1. EC are moderate. There is no wind.
2. Neither side may make nor fire smoke.
3. All buildings are wooden.
4. German Air Support enters on turn 3 and consists of two fighters (’42) without bombs. They remain on board for 2 game turns (#3 & #4).

5. The Italian Artillery must set up unconcealed and unhidden on the level 3 hexes of hill 621 or the level 2 hexes of hill 538 in such a way that there is a continuous line of units one hex wide. Once set up they may not be moved from their original set up hexes. Only the Italian crews may fire the Artillery pieces (even if captured).

6. The Italian Infantry sets up on any of the hill hexes of board 2.

Sunday, September 17, 1944. On the Oosterbeek-Wolfeheze road (Leopard Route) near the town of Wolfeheze. After a successful glider landing, Major C. F. H. "Freddie" Gough's 1st Airborne Reconnaissance Squadron boarded their jeeps and proceeded toward Arnhem to seize control of the bridge. After proceeding a short distance they ran into an ambush.

Elements of the 9th SS Pz Division set up as per SSR #3. [ELR: 4] {SAN: 5}

Elements of the British 1st Airborne Reconnaissance Squadron enter on turns 1 and 2 on 4GG5/6. [ELR: 5] {SAN: 2}. All British Jeeps are considered to be armed with an AAmg.

TACTICAL OBJECTIVE: To win, the British player must exit 3 vehicles and 3 HSs off the south edge by turn 4.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are Moderate with no wind at start.
2. SS do not have PF or ATM capability.
3. German units are placed on board as per SSRs 3.1-.5.

Each German unit may appear only once. There is no need to make a dr on a table if that German unit has already been placed on board.

AFTERMATH: Unable to proceed any further, due to the ferocity of the ambush, their fellow British paratroopers were left to their fate in Arnhem.
FOR RED BARRICADES.
Includes Mapsheet Insert.

DESIGNER’S NOTES: Fifty years ago the “mother” of all urban battles, Stalingrad, was just beginning. Using Charlie Köhler’s excellent “Red Barricades” campaign game system we can focus on the struggle for the Central Railway Station, Stalingrad #1, where some of the main fighting in southern Stalingrad occurred. Due to the small area involved I was able to design a “RB” type campaign in miniature, reflecting the heroic stand of a small elite group of Russian Guards. The map was drawn using aerial photos and while definitely not “Köhler” quality, it gives you the general idea of the terrain involved. The RG charts reflect the actual orders of battle as closely as possible and while I didn’t want to monkey with the “RB” rules, some changes were necessary for historical as well as play balance reasons. The automatic night rule and attack limit rules are due to the short game length and the probability that the Russian would normally get few if any chances to make any (night) attacks. The new “NKVD” company reflects the fact that these units were comprised mostly of militia but did contain a cadre of NKVD personnel. The commissar rule assumes that the NKVD units would likely be commanded by such a political officer. The withdrawal rule eliminates the numerical edge the Russian would have as well as the presence of “substandard” troops, both being ahistorical. The VC are historical in that they force the Russian to defend the station at least until the 18th of September, after which he may fall back to the downtown area. A word on the initial scenario: I could have started this CG on the 15th with an all Guards OB but after all, this is a historical simulation of the fight for the station and it would not be complete without portraying the initial day’s combat involving the “non-Guards” units and the obviously depleted German initial OB.

ERRATA to Hide & Seek Issue #102

Corrections received too late for inclusion:

Under HIP (p.6) add:
Fortifications can always set up HIP but are usually revealed in the LOS of a Good Order enemy unit (A12.33). Therefore, a fortification can be set up HIP in the LOS of the opponent's units but won't be placed on board until game start. You may still want to pass on this HIP placement in favor of using the Fortification counters to temporarily hide the contents underneath (as mentioned earlier).

Add to end of 2nd to last paragraph: Try using a HIP squad ready to throw a DC into an adjacent hex or down a staircase. Or try setting up HIP MMC in building locations in the hopes of using Street Fighting on passing vehicles.

Dummy Stack: add to 1st paragraph: In a scenario where your opponent does not set up on the board, any Concealment counters provided in the OB should be used for Dummy stacks since all of your units will be freely concealed. An important point to remember about Dummies is that they can't be set up in non-Concealment terrain. So if your opponent sets up a unit under a Concealment counter in, for example, a foxhole in Open Ground- you know that the unit must be real and not a dummy.

1.) ROADS - All roads are paved.

2.) THE SQUARE - Any hex containing a paved vertex [EX - hex H10] is part of the "square" and boulevard rules apply therein (B7.0). Only those hexes of the square that contain a sewer symbol have a sewer entrance.

3.) THE COMMON - Hex K10 represents a small park or common containing a fountain. For LOS/TEM/movement purposes the hex is treated as open ground surrounded completely by a hedge; LOS "through" the hex via the gaps in the hedge is NA [EX - a unit in J19 has LOS to K18 but is not treated as concealment terrain unless encircled. The hex does contain a sewer entrance.

4.) BUILDINGS - All multi-hex buildings are level 1 1/2 except O17 which is a 2 1/2 level structure. All hexes that contain multiple building depictions [EX - hex A4] are of wood construction as are buildings A20, 12, 14 and 14; all other buildings are stone. There are several instances where a portion of a building protrudes into a rubble hex [EX - hex B7]; this is only to show that some buildings are indeed multi-hex buildings and for LOS purposes the entire rubble hex is still a 1/2 level obstacle.

4.1) ROWHOUSES - Buildings B1, B4, A7, B8, O6, G7, O10 and O11 are rowhouses.

4.2) FACTORIES - Buildings F, L13 and L9 are factories and each one contains several roofless factory hexes [EX - hex G7].

4.3) RAILWAY STATION TERMINAL - Building 17 is a unique type of factory as it has no vehicular entrances, and marketplace rules (B23.73) apply to hexes H5 and H6 (thus the rail embankments pass under them).

These locations may be entered per B23.73 or via one of the factory rooftops. Access points located at hexes G6, G8, 16 and 18. A unit wishing to enter such a location would first ascend to "quasi-level 1" and thence into the marketplace location. If any of the rooftop access points should become roofless or rubble then the adjacent marketplace location would no longer exist and should be replaced by rubble at ground level.

11.1) CAMPAIGN GAME - All "RED BARRICADES" CG SSR are in effect; those that have been amended are listed below.

11.4) GAME END - use "RED BARRICADES" term record chart.

11.6) OBA - Russian field phone security area must be traced off the east edge; the German security area off the west edge.

11.8) SNIPERS - only one sniper counter is used.

11.9) REINFORCEMENTS - Russian RG may only enter on friendly controlled north, south and east edge hexes. German RG may always enter on any west edge hexes and may enter on friendly controlled north and south edge hexes.

11.614) RUSSIAN WITHDRAWAL - Historically the remnants of the units defending the station were withdrawn for regrouping after the units of the 13th Guards Division relieved them on the night of the 14th. To simulate this, during the Revh following the last September 14th scenario this special step is added.

11.614) All non-isolated, fully mobile units from the Russian at start, OB (i.e. the 2nd NKVD Cays, SMG Coy and T-34) are withdrawn permanently from play, including all leaders and SWs received with them. Retained OBA modules and any purchased RGs are not withdrawn. For

RAILWAY STATION CAMPAIGN GAME:
"STORMING THE STATION"
CG Days 14-21 September 1942

As elements of Infanterie Division 71 and Panzer Division 24 battered their way into downtown Stalingrad they came upon the Central Railway Station, STALINGRAD #1, the last major obstacle blocking their drive to the Volga. The Germans, decimated by the fierce house-to-house fighting, found themselves up against the remnants of the 10th NKVD Division and 6th Tank Brigade, units with orders to hold the station at all costs until the 13th Guards Division could cross the Volga and reinforce the shaky Russian defenses.

CG VICTORY CONDITIONS:
The German wins at the conclusion of any scenario prior to 19 September by controlling all stone locations west of row "M" or at the conclusion of any scenario by controlling all but any 5 stone locations on the map.

INITIAL SCENARIO VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Germans must control all 50 stone locations at scenario end.

INITIAL RUSSIAN OB: Elements of the 10th NKVD Division and 6th Tank brigade (ELR.3) set up on or east of hexrow "C" (SAN:5)
RG: NKVD COY x2 FLB x6
RG: SMG Coy 10 CPP
T-34M41 x1 40 CPP
Note: FLB, Fortified Building Location.

INITIAL GERMAN OB: Elements of Infanterie Division 71 [ELR.4] enter along the west edge on/after turn 1 (also see SSR #2) (SAN:2)
RG: Rifle Coy RG: Stuka RG: StuG III Ptn 13 CPP RG: Btrn Mtr OBA w/Otto'd Observer (SSR #2)

INITIAL SCENARIO SPECIAL RULES
1.) EC are Dry; no wind. The weather is Clear.
2.) The German may not purchase SAN, Stuka, AT battery, INF battery, and pre-registered hexes, and the only fortifications that may be purchased are "?". The Otto'd Observer must be used for the OB given Mortar OBA.
German may purchase early arrival DRM for the Stuka. German reinforcing RG infantry/AFV units enter on/after turn 2.
3.) The Russian may not purchase Med Arty, Hvy Arty, Katyusha, AT Battery. Infantry type (?) RG may only be purchased as reserve RGs and must be retained off-map. The T-34 is not considered part of a platoon and thus is not subject to normal AFV platoon withdrawal nor may it roll for a leader.
4.) All west edge hexes are German controlled at start, all others are Russian controlled. Place map edge markers accordingly.

5.) The Russian T-34 is not considered an AFV Ptn or part of an AFV Ptn and thus is not subject to normal AFV Ptn withdrawal (RB:1.6:14) nor may the Russian player roll for an armor leader.

AFTERMATH: The Germans failed to break through on the 14th, but did manage to occupy several buildings which they were promptly chased out of later that night by the just arriving 1st Battalion of the 42nd guards Regiment. For the next few days the Guardsmen were subjected to ferocious attacks in which control of the station would change hands 4 or 5 times a day, but with the Guards hanging on at day's end. With the head-on assaults not working the Germans then attempted to cut in behind the station and the fighting raged around the station square and fountain and this fancy was finally halted by the Russians at the "Nail Factory". On the 18th the Guardsmen, surrounded on three sides and their ranks thinned by the bloody hand-to-hand combat, finally abandoned the station and moved across the street to the "Nail Factory" which they had turned into a miniature fortress. Here they held out until the 21st when in one final massive assault the Germans overwhelmed and annihilated the remainder of the Guardsmen. Of the entire 1st Battalion, 42nd Guards Regiment, only seven men survived.

CONFIDENCE IS HIGH

The Central Railway Station, 14 September 1942: The second day of the German assault on downtown Stalingrad saw elements of Infanterie Division 71 and Panzer Division 24 making rapid progress in their drive to reach the Volga. In spite of suffering heavy casualties in the fierce house-to-house fighting the Germans were highly confident they would capture the central landing stage by nightfall. This would split the 62nd Army in two and deny the Russians use of the main ferry landing on the west bank. General Chichkov was desperately trying to scrape together enough men to delay the Germans until reinforcements from the 13th Guards Division could arrive that night. All he had to accomplish this task were a few of Sarayevo’s NKVD militia and the last remnants of Major Khoko’s tank brigade which consisted of some 100 men armed with tommy guns and a solitary tank which had been knocked out at the station crossings but could still fire its gun. Chichkov ordered these units to hold until relieved “...or else.”

VICTORY CONDITIONS:
The German wins the instant he has exited 31 VF off the east edge; prisoners do not count towards the exit conditions.

BALANCE:
The Russians have an ELR 2 and are suffering from ammo shortage.

Change the game length to 6 1/2 turns.

SPECIAL RULES
1. EC are dry; no wind. Weather is clear. Kindling is N/A.
2. All “Red Barricades” SSRs are in effect. [EXC: RB SSR#1] see back of scenario RB 2.

3. The T-34 is immobilized, and the crew will not be forced to abandon the vehicle or D534 unless all armament is disabled.
4. The Russian has Molotov capability, may use HIP for 4 squads and SMG/SW stacked with them, and may fortify 3 building locations (tunnels N/A). Russian units in a fortified building location (not a cellar) are considered Fanatic while therein.
5. Due to approaching darkness a +1 LV modifier will be in effect the last 2 1/2 turns (E3.1).

AFTERMATH: The Germans weren’t so confident once they viewed the Central Railway station STALINGRAD 1 which stood directly in their path. Its concrete buildings and burnt out rolling stock presented a formidable obstacle and many a good hiding place for booby traps, ambushes and snipers which could quickly sap the strength of the already depleted German Infantry units. Seeking to avoid further casualties they decided to swing just south of the station where they became involved in heavy fighting with the defenders at the crossing. The Russians fought with a fanaticism born of desperation, and although they persevered a major breakthrough some German units managed to infiltrate through and occupy the “specialist’s house” and several other buildings in the downtown area from which they could fire on the ferry landing. The Germans also took control of several of the station buildings but were pushed out later that night by Rodimsey’s Guards. Nonetheless, as Chichkov stated, Khoko’s men had “...carried out their task with honor”, and their sacrifice allowed the Guardsmen enough time to get ashore and restore the situation.

THE VALOR OF THE GUARDS

The Central Railway Station, 17 September 1942: Since the night of the 14th the men of Rodimsey’s 13th Guards Division had been involved in a bitter struggle over control of the station. The fighting raged day and night with the station changing hands four or five times each day but with the Guardsmen somehow managing to hold the upper hand. The morning of the 17th dawned with the usual appearance of the Stukas as they bombed and strafed the station, followed closely by an artillery bombardment which buckled the iron girders and blew apart the walls. The defenders barely had time to regain their senses when the German attack began: a large force of tommy-gunners supported by some twenty panzers rolled towards them, heralding yet another day of bloody hand-to-hand fighting amongst the smoldering piles of rubble and debris.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German wins at game’s end by controlling 25 stone locations of which 12 must be factory locations) or east of hexrow “D”.

BALANCE: Add an 8-3-8 and a PT to the German OB at start.

The Russian has a SAN 7 and may HIP an additional 2 squads (and SMG/SW) at start.

SEND MORE PIGEONS
Avola, Sicily, July 10, 1943:
Avola was the objective of the British 50th Division, which was landing by sea to the south. However, a small group of American paratroopers, who had been dropped north of town by mistake, decided to attack. Apparently it didn't occur to them that taking a town of 22,000 would be tough with only 75 men.

Elements of the 206th Coastal Division set up on boards 20 and 21 between rows D and DD (inclusive): [ELR: 2] {SAN: 5}

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are Dry with a Mild Breeze blowing from the east.
2. All Woods are Brush. All Orchards are Olive Groves (F13.5). All buildings are stone. All 2nd level buildings are Ground Level only.

SPECIAL RULES:
3. Three Italian squads/equivalents plus any leaders/SW set up with them may use HIP.
4. The Italian SAN will increase by one when an American and a British unit are within six hexes (incl) of each other.
5. Interrogation (E2) is in effect.
6. If played as a three-player game, no communication is allowed between the Allied players. The American player goes first each phase.

AFTERMATH: Although the Italians were disenchanted with the war, they showed more spirit than the paratroopers gave them credit for. By mid-afternoon, the attack had stalled and they were pinned down by machine gun fire. Suddenly, a Bren carrier appeared and blasted the position causing the Italians to flee. Link up with British troops occurred moments later, but not before the British, who did not expect to see any paratroopers, had fired on them. Organized resistance in Avola was over, but the Italian commanders were ill-informed and out of touch. The following day, a carrier pigeon bearing a message from the 206th Coastal Division was intercepted. Part of the message read: "Heroic infantry and artillery still doing their duty ... Send more pigeons."

Elements of the 29th Infantry, Sendai's 2nd Division: [ELR: 4] {SAN: 2} Place Japanese units in an offboard "pool"; they are initially represented by Italian question mark counters serving as Cloaking Counters.

Victory Conditions: The U.S. player wins if he controls at least one of the two Victory Hexes (36K6/36F5) at scenario end.

Special Rules:
1. EC are Wet, Weather is Overcast, with No Wind at Start.
2. PTO Terrain, with dense jungle, is in effect. Treat all brush/marsh hexes as Jungle hexes.
3. Night Rules are in effect. Initial NVR is 4. Moon Phase is Full, Cloud Cover is Scattered. The Japanese are the Scenario Attacker. [EXC: Due to the fact that US units represent reserves being fed into the line, there is no HIP allotment for US forces.]
4. Japanese forces are handled by the following Special Rules: The 14 Italian question mark counters represent Cloaked Japanese units. They're placed on mapboard 35, one in each hex with a coordinate of six. On turn 1 they begin moving towards the Victory Hexes on mapboard 36 (see SSR 5). The contents, if any, of each Cloaked Counter are determined whenever the Counter suffers Concealment Loss for whatever reason. When this happens, make a DR: if the cdr is ≥4, then the Cloaked Counter is considered to be a Dummy and is removed from play. If the cdr is ≤3 then the wdr determines the exact composition of the Japanese force as per Table A, as follows: (continued on page 8)

June/July 1993 9 On All Fronts
During the remainder of the night repeated probes and charges were made, forcing "Chesty" Puller to call upon his reserves and use the 164th Infantry Regiment to plug growing gaps in his line, where the 1st Battalion of the 29th Infantry were attacking.

AFTERMATH: The US infantry units, although having been untested in battle, performed admirably after they were led, a small group at a time, to various positions shoring up the Marine line. Although the Japanese reported back to their superiors that they had taken Henderson Field, their attack was in fact ground to a complete halt, and most of Sendai's 2nd Division lay dead outside the wire perimeter.

The appropriate counters are taken from the offboard pool and placed onboard. If the last Cloaking counter is removed and there are still squads in the offboard pool, regardless of Placement DR, ≤3 squads will be placed in its hex. Also, the instant the last remaining squad is Placed, remove all remaining Cloaking Counters.

5. Japanese Actions:

A. Cloaking counters
   Move/Advance towards 36K6 or 36F5 in the most direct manner, taking whichever route expends the least number of MFs. If two hexes are of equal cost and both are equally close to a Victory Hex, then choose randomly which hex the Cloaking counter will enter. [Note: the movement of Cloaking Counters is purposely intended to be as random as possible which will probably cause them to move directly into the LOS of U.S. units. This is okay.]

B. Uncloaked Japanese units will attempt to move directly toward the Victory Hexes, unless they move into the LOS of a Known Enemy unit, at which point they will begin a Banzai charge towards that unit (using any remaining MFs). This Banzai Charge begins after any desired Defensive Fire. If the Japanese unit survives CC with the U.S. Unit, in future turns it will continue its movement toward the Victory Hexes. If the U.S. unit which caused the Japanese unit to make a Banzai Charge leaves the Japanese unit's LOS, the Japanese unit will continue its Charge until it enters the U.S. unit's original Location. If at this point the U.S. unit still isn't in LOS, the Japanese unit will resume its movement towards the Victory Hexes.

Upon entering the Victory Hex (es) Japanese units stop movement. [EXC: They will not Overstack. Instead "excess" units will begin moving towards the nearest U.S. unit, regardless of LOS.]

6. If the Wind Change DR = 2, then immediately determine the contents of ALL cloaking counters onboard, with a -1 drm to the cdr. Then, every Good Order Japanese unit begins to make a Banzai charge towards the nearest Victory Hex (regardless of LOS). A Japanese unit making this Charge will redirect its charge towards a U.S. unit only if it moves ADJACENT during its Charge.

THE ZUID WILLEMS CANAL
's-Hertogenbosch had several major waterways, being intersected by two rivers, a moat and a canal. Although the German training battalions holding the canal line were weak and without heavy weapons, defending it was easy - especially after the canal bridges were blown. But the canal lock was intact, and so was the footbridge over it.

AFTERMATH: The Crocodiles flamed the houses on the far side of the canal, then laid down a smoke screen while the infantry removed the wire and began crossing the footbridge. The Germans who opened up on them drew tank fire and were flamed. After clearing the area, the infantry settled in. By the next morning, engineers had erected a tank bridge across the canal, and the last major defense line in 's Hertogenbosch had been breached.

THE RUPTURED DUCK
Gilbert Islands, Tarawa Atol, Betio.
November 20, 1943: Before the first assault waves of Marines could approach their designated beachheads the pier had to be cleared of the few Japanese guarding it. The job went to 1st Lieutenant William D. Hawkins of the 2nd Scout Sniper Platoon which was a special unit from Regimental Headquarters, 2nd Marine Division.

Elements of the 2nd Marine Division enter turn 1 along the northwest edge of overlay OC4 between hexes 4147, 4156. [ELR: 5] {SAN: NA}

Optional: Replace with L.C.V.P. boat.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Marines must eliminate all Japanese from the pier by turn 5. Otherwise the Japanese win.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are dry with a mild breeze blowing from the north.

2. The US side is conducting a Seaborne Assault (G14.1)

3. Place Pier counters on OC4 4001 to 4095 and 4096 to 4098 (G13.7).

4. Place Fortified Building Location counters (from RB) at ground level in hexes 4112 and 4109. These are considered huts for all intents and purposes (G.5).

5. A Submerged Reef exists from 41008 to 4145 and from 4086 to 4088 (G13.43).

AFTERMATH: Lt. Hawkins and his men captured the pier after setting fire to two shacks at the end of it with a flamethrower. Lt. Hawkins went on to lead his men in further attacks until mortally wounded.

FERRY (cont. from p. 10) remained to stop them. But the Russians were heartened by the knowledge that the 13th guards Division was to begin crossing that evening. If they had a place to land...

AFTERMATH: The Germans had occupied several key positions only 750 yards from the river, including the five-story State Bank. Although the Germans could fire on the boats from this point, they could not break through the thin Russian line to capture the pier. As the Guards landed, they immediately went on the offensive, along with the resupplied NKVD troops. But the Germans held onto their key buildings, and the long stalemate had begun.

* Designer's note: Use the new version of board 10.

6. The 10th NKVD Division units are Stealthy, but suffer from Ammo Shortage (A19.131). Ammo Shortage is relieved immediately when the Ammo Counter is unloaded ashore. The Ammo Counter is SPP, and has no other purpose in the game.
7. The Assault Boats have 4 MPs and an Inherent Driver. They have a capacity of 35PP.
8. Russians may not set fires.
9. There is no crew for the 76*INF.
10. LV (E3.1) is in effect.

Assault at Wadelincourt
May 13, 1940. Wadelincourt, Belgium. The northernmost of three crossing attempts of the Meuse took place late in the day as advanced elements of the German 10th Panzer Division approached the river in the face of fierce crossfire from the western bank. As a preliminary to gaining a bridgehead, assault engineers would have to cross the river and silence the well-prepared French positions on the far side.

Elements of the 55ème Division d’Infanterie set up on board 2. [ELR: 3] {SAN: 3}

Elements of the 86th PanzerGrenadier Regiment, 10th Panzer Division enter on turn 1 or later along the east edge. [ELR: 4] {SAN: 3}

THANK YOU 3W
“Assault at Wadelincourt” was originally published by 3W who graciously allowed us to reprint our ASL version.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player wins if at game’s end he controls three of the four French bunkers.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are moist with no wind at start. The river is flooded, with a moderate current flowing north. There are no island hexes. Consider such hexes as open river instead.

2. All buildings on board 6 are single-story and wood.

3. The French player receives one module of 70+ mm OBA.

AFTERMATH: After a bitter and costly struggle, the Germans succeeded in scrambling a few men onto the west bank. These men managed to knock out one bunker and the tide then began to turn to the Germans’ favor. By the end of the day, they had a firm foothold on the west bank and would eventually succeed in establishing a bridgehead.

3. Night rules are in effect. Initial NVR is five hexes, with no cloud cover and full moon. Viet Minh are attacking, French defending. 1st BEP units are exempt from the freedom of movement restriction (E1.21). Viet Minh and T’ai are stealthy, Moroccans and FFL normal. The French receive one IR round independent of OBA as long as they maintain radio contact. (IR round represents French Air Force Flare aircraft.)

4. Viet Minh receive two modules of 100mm OBA (FFE1) which are executed after setup but prior to play. They are on target with a dr 1-3, direction and extent rolled for if needed. The final target hex cannot be corrected. The FFE1 and FFE2 effects last until the turn 1 French RPh. The French receive one module of 100mm OBA beginning turn 2.

5. The Viet Minh use Japanese rules. Viet Minh sappers are assault engineers, Fanatic, and use Russian 6-2-8 counters. Sapper step reduction is as follows 6-2-8 2-2-8 1-2-7x2BROKEN.

Only sappers may utilize 57mm RCR and FT. Sapper and T-H heroes may utilize DC. T-H Heroes may use DC against any French unit (ATMM not available). French (except T’ai) may use SW as normal.

6. T’ai regulars use normal Allied Minor rules except T’ai leaders may rally French troops without penalty (French NCSs led T’ai units.)

7. Viet Minh may fire MGs or Ordnance from jungle hexes without penalty or loss of concealment. This reflects the extensive Viet Minh battlefield preparations in camouflage and weapons emplacement. The caves may be placed on "Old Baldy" (overlay I) or "Phony Mountain" (Bd 39, hill 779). The caves are not interconnected. VM AAA may destroy the flare aircraft with a TH <3 and a TK DR <4. 351st Rgt. elements may bore-sight. Viet Minh units use red TH numbers.

8. All French AP/DUMMY minefields are placed on board 37, strength side down. This reflects Viet Minh recon activity.

ill-fated night attack on the 15th, which cost them 700 casualties, but did not gain any ground. No progress was made by the Marines on the 16th, as the day was spent mopping up the remnants of the night action. Undeterred, Lt. General Yoshitsuga Saith ordered another night attack for the night of the 16th/17th. The objective was the remains of the Saipan radio station, a quarter mile behind Marine lines. The 9th Tank Regiment, personally led by its commander, Colonel Goto, rolled down out of the hills in two waves, with infantrymen clinging to the sides of the tanks of the first wave. At the sound of the approaching tanks, derisively referred to as “kitchen sinks” by the Marines, Lt. Colonel Jones ordered a medium tank company to stand by. At 0330, starshells illuminated the first tank as it rounded a corner of the ridge. It signaled the beginning of the first large night tank attack of the Pacific war.

AFTERMATH: A cacophony of sight and sound greeted the tanks, as starshells, tracers, and anti-tank fire lit up the night. The Marines let the tanks roll over them, then hit them with bazookas, satchel charges and grenades. The burning tanks would illuminate others, and they too were hit. The Japanese tankers exhibited bizarre behavior. Occasionally, a tank would stop and the crew would jump out, sing songs, and wave swords. A bugle would be blown, and the crew would jump back in. Then a bazookaman would blow up the tank apart. When the infantry followed the tanks came up, they found themselves without the tank support that they had been counting on, and were cut down by the company’s machine guns. The Central Railway Station, 14 September 1942: Just after nightfall the men of Rodimstev's 13th Guards Division began ferrying across the Volga to reinforce the 62nd Army in the downtown area. Led by Yelin's 42nd Regiment the guardsmen splashed ashore, heavily armed with mortars, machine guns and anti-tank weapons, their artillery having been left on the east bank to provide fire support from their safer positions. Near the Army H.Q. General Chuikov spotted a young Lieutenant and asked him where his men were; the officer was Lt. Anton Dragan, commander of the 1st Company, 1st Battalion. Chuikov ordered him to take his men and "clear out the main railway station..." Dragan gathered his company, and heavily laden with grenades and machine guns they disappeared into the darkness.

AFTERMATH: As the guardsmen approached the station they found the remnants of Khopko's tank brigade near the crossing, a dozen men still clustered around their disabled T-34. They then moved to surround the station buildings, held by German units which had suffered badly in the day's fighting and moved in for hand-to-hand. The Germans broke and fled into the night, but soon afterwards Dragan's company was subjected to counterattacks from three different directions, all of which were repelled. This was merely the first chapter in what was to become some of the bloodiest fighting in all of Stalingrad. 😡

The Central Railway Station, 21 September 1942: Since the 18th the remnants of the 1st Battalion had been holding on to several well fortified buildings just off the station square, dubbed the "Nail Factory" by the guardsmen due to the large store of nails they found there. This was a strong position from which they were able to control several of the key intersections leading to the main ferry landing. This fact was not lost on the Germans as they had been repeatedly trying to take the "Nail Factory", with the bitter close quarter fighting failing to dislodge the fanatic defenders. The 20th was relatively quiet and Lt. Dragan was informed by a civilian of a massive German buildup that was taking place. Joined by the remnants of Lt. Koleganov's and Lt. Azvodun's companies, Dragan ordered fortifications prepared, dispatched teams of volunteer Tommy gunners to operate behind German lines, and formed detachments of men armed with anti-tank rifles and molotov cocktails to combat tanks. The storm finally broke on the 21st, preceded by the usual artillery bombardment.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German wins at the end of any game turn by controlling ≥18 (or all whichever is less) stone locations in the Russian setup area, providing he has not lost ≥50 CVP.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are Dry: no wind. Red Barricades rules (back of scenario RB5) and Railway Station rules are in effect (EXC: Russian units must pass a NTC to enter a sewer). Factories 114 and L12 are gutted. Kindling and Tunnels are N/A.

2. Russians are Fanatic; have BTC level "A"; have MOL capability; may use HIP for ≤ squads/equivalent (and SMC/SW with them) and may fortify ≤12 building locations. A-T mines may not be exchanged for A-T mines (or vice-versa).

3. The German must set up so there is ≥1 squad/equivalent in/or adjacent to every hex of the German perimeter (which is defined as P12-L14-L18-P20).

4. After setup but prior to play, hexes numbered 14 to 19 in rows N-P will undergo a bombardment. To determine immune hexes use six cards #1-6; draw 3 cards per hexrow and add 13 to each card for the result; reshuffle and repeat process for each hexrow. Resolve bombardment per C1.82 [EXC: the bombardment is resolved as a 3MC vs. personnel (instead of a 2MC) and the roadblock has a morale of 11 for bombardment purposes].

AFTERMATH: The guardsmen exacted a fearful toll as the Germans pounded away furiously at the "Nail Factory". Many panzers fell victim to molotov and anti-tank rifle attacks, while artillery and machine gun nests were disrupted by the Tommy gun detachments. Nonetheless the assault began to thin the ranks of the stout defenders, and the Germans finally broke through to the Volga after annihilating the 1st Battalion H.Q. in Red Square. This put the Germans behind the "Nail Factory" position and forced Lt. Dragan to order a withdrawal towards the river. They took up their last position guarding an intersection which they defended fiercely until the building was razed by panzers firing point blank. After nightfall Lt. Dragan and five other soldiers, all that remained of the battalion, crept out of the rubble and escaped across the Volga.

TAKE HENDERSON FIELD
August 21, 1942, the IIu (mistakenly thought to be the Tenaru) River, near Henderson Field, Guadalcanal. The first major Japanese offensive to retake the island was designated as Operation KA. Commander Ichiki had carefully assembled his men in the jungle facing the American positions. After a short artillery and machine gun barrage, the Japanese fiercely charged across the sandbar at the mouth of the river.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Japanese win immediately if they have ≥ 12 points of Good Order Infantry on the west side of the river and there are no Good Order U.S. Infantry in hexes M1-M3 and N3-N7.

SPECIAL RULES: See page 8.

AFTERMATH: The attackers were slaughtered as they attempted to cross the river. Machine gun and rifle fire mowed them down. Fighters from Henderson Field mercilessly strafed them. It was a severe defeat for the Japanese. Ichiki, in despair, burned his regimental colors and committed “hara kari”

BITING BEECK (continued from page 10) had taken heavy losses in the Arnhem fighting and had been pulled out of Holland for rest and reorganization. But the pressing demand of the front took precedence, and their only rest was the week it took the Americans to prepare the next assault. It fell on the Geilenkirchen area. Beeck was one of the nearby villages, and several attempts to capture it had failed. Finally, on November 29th, a company from the 84th Infantry Division had managed to occupy the southwest edge of town. As it was dark and the company was receiving a great deal of small arms fire, no attempt was made to clear the rest of the town. On the morning of the 30th, Co. B, with four light tanks for support, was to jump off from their toehold and take the western half of the village. Co. A would attack from the east.

AFTERMATH: The SS had had all night to deploy machine guns and snipers to fend off the anticipated assault. Co. B’s progress was slow. Meanwhile, heavy concentrations of artillery and mortar fire kept Co. A outside of town for the whole day. Co. B had advanced 250 yards by noon, then halted to regroup. Suddenly two Panthers drove into town on the road from Würm. The first knocked out a light tank, but was then damaged by bazooka fire and withdrew. The second moved up with fifteen or twenty supporting SS troopers. Another light tank was hit, but the Panther was disabled and the infantry were driven back. This broke the back of the German resistance, and when the company finally resumed its advance, only light resistance was encountered. By 1800, the G.I.s had dug in on the high ground outside Beeck. Co. A finally filtered into town after dark, and a cavalry troop reinforced the group the following day. Beeck was firmly held.

October 1994 9 On All Fronts
On the night of August 20th, Ichiki launched repeated furious assaults against the prepared Marine defense at the mouth of Alligator Creek. His Banzai tactics failed to drive the Marines back and cost the Japanese dearly. Ichiki withdrew to a large coconut grove 200 yards to the east and, perhaps mindful of orders, chose to remain there at daybreak. Lieutenant Lenard B. Cresswell was ordered to take the initiative by maneuvering his reserve battalion inland to encircle and destroy Ichiki's entrenched position between Alligator Creek and the ocean.

reconnoiter, the tank-platoon leader chose to engage the Japanese at point-blank range with canister and flushed out their positions for the Marines to mop up. One tank was wrecked by Japanese armed only with grenades and magnetic anti-tank mines. Groups of Japanese broke through the Marine's skirmish line in an attempt to escape but were annihilated. Realizing that his situation was hopeless, Ichiki burned his regimental colors and committed suicide. At least 777 Japanese died during the night attacks and the subsequent American encirclement.

106th were going to have to save themselves. But fatigue, casualties, unfamiliar terrain, and a lack of experience made them a less than ideal assault force. The orders of the 423rd Regiment called for the 3rd Battalion to move down the hill via a logging trail in column and assault Schoenberg. Captain Huyatt’s company was in the lead, as they had suffered the fewest casualties and had a good supply of ammo. But the long, strung out column of tired, hungry soldiers was depending on luck and surprise. Before they even reached Schoenberg, they found out that they had neither, as a flak gun and an 88 opened up on them.

AFTERMATH: As the AA gun fired, the G.I.s lay on the road or in the ditch, trying to avoid the fusillade of shells above their heads. Suddenly Captain Huyatt heard tank tracks coming up the valley. “It’s one of ours!” he shouted - just before it began firing HE shells at them. The German-manned tank drove past, then the sound of German voices coming from behind signalled further trouble. Huyatt and half of his remaining men charged back up the hill, firing from the hip, forcing the German infantry to withdraw. The exhausted men collapsed into their old foxholes at the top of the hill. When the next German attack came an hour later, they resisted a few minutes until their dwindling supply of ammo ran out, then surrendered. The other two companies withdrew and dug foxholes for the final stand. The best chance for a breakout had disappeared - and later the same day, so did the 106th Infantry Division, as they officially surrendered.

THE GRAIN ELEVATOR
September 18, 1942, Southern Stalingrad, Russia: The German Sixth Army entered Stalingrad at a higher cost than anticipated. Since September 13th they pounded away at the Russians who were defending their city street by street and block by block. The Russians made Stalingrad into a cauldron of fortresses and the Germans were learning the true meaning of street fighting.

One of those fortresses was the huge grain elevator in the southern part of the city. Its cement silos rose high above the plain making observation easy for the Soviet soldiers who occupied it. Since September 14th, a group of about 50 Russian troops had holed up in the corrugated metal sided tower and defied the guns of three German Divisions. Reinforced on the night of September 17th by the Soviet’s 92nd Marines, the Russians fought on with renewed spirit. Lt. Andrei Khoysyanov and a platoon of marines smoked and joked as they joined their comrades in the elevator. German fire ricocheted and whistled through their fortress as they held off attack after attack. At one point a German tank pulled up under a white flag. Fascinated by this maneuver, the Russians allowed them to approach their position. An officer and interpreter cautiously asked for their surrender to the “Heroic German Army”. The Russians promptly told them where to go and the marines blew up the tank.

REVISED TANK BUSTER: Kursk
Kursk Salient. July 5, 1943. Hptm Rudel in a cannon-armed Ju87G, followed by the whole 1 Staffel loaded with bombs attacked a Russian tank column. In the very first attack Rudel destroyed four Soviet tanks. By the end of the day his total was 12. Thus was born the first Ju87G tank-busting Staffel.
See letters on page 5.

Elements of 1 Staffel: Enter as per SSR 3.

Elements of Russian tank column set up as per SSR 2. {SAN: 0}

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player wins if at the end of the game he has amassed ≥ 20 Casualty VPs more than the Russian Player.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are Clear and Dry.

2. Each game turn consists of the German player’s DFPh only.
At the beginning of each turn Russian AFVs are placed on board (BU, in Motion) and in Convoy (E11.) as per Placement Chart A. Only 6 Mobile AFVs may be on the mapboard during any game turn. Immobilized tanks or Wrecks from prior turns remain in their hexes. The random appearance is to simulate the movement of various elements of the tank column.

CHART A

3. AIRCRAFT AVAILABILITY
CHART.
Make a dr at the start of each game turn to select one aircraft. Only one aircraft is on board each turn.
- dr 1 - JU 87G
- dr 2 - JU 87 with bombs
- dr 3 - JU 87G
- dr 4 - JU 87 bombs
- dr 5 - FB with bombs
- dr 6 - roll again

4. This represents a "Tank Buster" Stuka (JU 87G) with two 37mm anti-tank guns mounted under its wings. It carries no bombs but qualifies for multiple Hits (C3.8) on each successful To Hit DR. To Kill DRs are made on the C7.32 Table 37L (APCR). Attacking AFVs is done in the same manner as Strafing E7.401 and E7.41.

5. CE Status [EXC: dr 5 of Chart A]: At the start of turn 1 make a dr for each Russian AFV. A dr of 1 or 6 grants CE status to that vehicle. At the start of turn 2 make a dr for each Russian AFV that is BU. A dr of 1, 4 or 6 grants CE status to that vehicle. During turn 3 all vehicles are CE.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player wins if there are no functioning Artillery pieces attended by an unbroken enemy crew at game's end. The U.S. player wins by avoiding the German VCs or by exiting at least 4 artillery pieces off the west edge.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC: Ground Snow with no wind at start.
2. Hill 538 on board 2 is Ground level.
3. Place Abandoned counters on the U.S. trucks.
4. U.S. Vehicles may not set up in the same or adjacent hex to an artillery piece.

AFTERMATH: Although the gunners of Battery A were an intrepid lot they could not withstand the onslaught. As the Volksgrenadiers charged the hill they found the Americans had already left. Another objective gained in their march westward.

DeGaulle Counterattacks
May 19, 1940, Ham, France.
After nine days of fighting, the 4th DCR had suffered heavy losses. Realizing the urgency to eliminate the bridgehead over the Somme, over which large quantities of supplies and German troops were racing west, General DeGaulle gathered as many tanks as he could find to augment those of his own division and sent them north.

Elements of 10th Panzer Division set up (See SSR #3.) on board 4 or 5.[ELR: 3] {SAN: 4}.

Elements of the 4eme Division Cuirasee enter along the south edge. {SAN: 0} VICTORY CONDITIONS: The French win immediately when they have exited ≥ 5 tanks off the north edge.

SPECIAL RULES:
1. EC are Moderate with a Mild Breeze blowing from the northwest at the start. Kindling is NA.
2. Boresighting is NA.
3. The German may use HIP for all units.
4. The Germans receive random Air Support (E7.2) in the form of Stukas with bombs.
5. The number of French tanks required to exit is modified by the turn of arrival of the German Air Support; -1 for every turn before turn 4 and by +1 for every turn after.

AFTERMATH: The counterattack which hit the 10th Panzer could not have come at a better time. Most of the panzers had moved west. What remained in the vicinity of the bridgehead were in the repair shops or short of ammo and fuel. As the thin screen of anti-tank guns slowed the French attack, Stukas were called to stop the French armor.

Due to German Aerial reconnaissance all Greek Fortifications [EXC: Mines] must set-up on board.

AFTERMATH: For three days the Germans pressed on into the well fortified position without a major breakthrough. The drive on Salonika was stalled with over 700 men killed and wounded. Only after the conquest of Yugoslavia was the Metaxas line threatened. Being outflanked the gallant Greek forces had to either withdraw or risk entrapment. Few made it back to friendly lines.

Possibly motivated by prestige, the battle seasoned SS troopers now found themselves embroiled in severe fighting amongst the numerous apartment buildings.

AFTERMATH: Led by Max Hanson, the PanzerGrenadiers pushed right through to the Red Square in tough street fighting and so opened the access routes to the city center. As the deadly street fighting raged on, the bulk of the XLVIII Panzer Corps found itself pinned down to the south of the city on the Misha Stream. Col. General Hoth, a master of mobile operation, did not wish to be pinned down and employed the bulk of his forces in an encirclement movement around Kharkov. On the 15th of March the pocket was sealed, the same day resistance by the Soviets collapsed at the Kharkov Tractor works, the last bastion of resistance. The victory, however, was a pyrrhic one. Motivated by prestige rather than by a tactical necessity the casualties suffered by the Leibstandarte, always considered as the cream of the crop, were heedlessly high. AFTERMATH: The green French tankers were overcome by Panic. During the confusion, the German gunners ripped apart the town leaving it in a blaze. When General Bruneau's Division limped off the battlefield that night, it had only 17 tanks left out of 175. The only unit capable of checking the advance of XV Panzer Korps had been virtually destroyed.

hundred men pass by, close enough to see their faces. As a command group of three officers approached, a 13-year old Belgian girl stepped onto the road, pointed at the American positions, and yelled a warning to the surprised Germans.

AFTERMATH: Lt. Bouck hesitated before giving the order to fire out of concern for the girl. This allowed the Germans to dive into ditches alongside the road. The platoon fired relentlessly at the charging paratroopers all day, holding them at bay. Bouck begged for artillery support, only to be told that none was available, and to hold on at all cost. A German bullet smashed the radio, ending any chance of getting artillery.
But still the few defenders held firm, cutting down the Germans as they charged out of Lanzareth. Finally, at dusk, with many of the men casualties and ammo running low, the Americans were outflanked and were pulled out of their foxholes at gun point.
Lt. Bouck would celebrate his 21st birthday the next day as a POW, but the defense put up by him and his men cost the Fallschirmjaegers 200 dead and wounded.

Division on October 21st the front stabilized until late that October, when a counter-attack was ordered to retake the town. The attack jumped off on November 3rd and ran into intense resistance from fortified enemy positions at the town's edge. With the aid of Stuka attacks and assault guns the German assault penetrated the Russian defenses in and around the brick factory. At this critical time the Soviet Commander committed his mobile reserve in an attempt to restore the situation. The T-34s and German assault guns met at close range in a violent exchange of fire.

AFTERMATH: In a matter of seconds, all but one of the assault guns were knocked out. Hand-to-hand fighting raged in and around the brick factory. The German advance was stopped, but the Russian attempts to retake their old positions were frustrated. Toward evening the intervention of the Fuehrer Escort Brigade closed the ring around the Russian Goldap garrison.
